CABINET SHIFTS HINTED AFTER INAUGURATION

1000 Club Will See 4th Term Start.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—With a cabinet shuffle and a new berth for Vice President Wallace in the wind, interest in official Washington centers on the inauguration of President Roosevelt for a fourth term next Saturday.

The inauguration will be private—for invited guests only, such as topflight administration officials, members of congress, the diplomatic corps, governors of states, members of the Democratic national committee and of Sidney's Hillman's CIO political action committee, members of the electoral college and members of the One Thousand club who contributed "one grand" each to get the ear of Mr. Roosevelt. It will be the simplest inauguration since Rutherford B. Hayes started his term in a private ceremony in the Red room of the White House March 4, 1877.

Will Speak Five Minutes.

Mr. Roosevelt will take the oath for the fourth time on the back porch of the White House surrounded by his family, personal friends and a few selected officials. Down below him in the back yard will be grouped several thousand other invited officials and the press. Outside the picket fence will be the populace, if any, peeking thru the slats at the ceremony and listening to the inaugural address thru loud speakers.

Word from the White House is that the inaugural address will be only five minutes long—the shortest on record. Considerations partly of the security of the President and of his physical condition dictated the private inauguration and the brevity of his address.

Partisans Expectant.

If Mr. Roosevelt fulfills the expectations of his chief partisans, however, his address will be an outstanding pronouncement of world importance on the war and the peace, ranking with Mr. Lincoln's second inaugural and also the Gettysburg address, which took even less than five minutes to deliver. A masterpiece of thought and composition by Mr. Roosevelt and his chief ghost writers, Robert Sherwood and Sam Rosenman, is confidently expected.

Similar expectations of the annual message on the state of the union on Jan. 6 failed of fulfilment. The President's noticeable dejection for several days thereafter was attributed in part to disappointment in the reception of the message which he expected would be hailed as a great state paper. Now he has another chance to hit the bull's-eye of popular acclaim.

Not more than one or two cabinet changes are expected at the start of the fourth term. Secretary of Labor Perkins has permitted the statement to seep out that she is definitely determined to retire, which is interpreted as an indication of her knowledge or intuition that the President desires to make a change in this post. It therefore is expected that she will not continue in office unless Mr. Roosevelt should find it more embarrassing to pick her successor than to keep her on the job.

Start Cigaret Rationing to Dealers Soon

In an attempt to deal with black market sales and other cigaret shortage problems, national cigaret rationing to retailers will go into effect soon in accordance with a plan to be released this afternoon by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors.

The association opens a war time conference in the Palmer House this evening with more than 1,000 representatives of the nation's largest distributors present. Their firms distribute cigarets and tobacco to 1,250,000 retail outlets in the United States.

Information Gained Here.

The plan, it was learned, calls for orderly rationing to retailers, partly on the basis of information obtained in Chicago where wholesalers have been rationing cigarets to dealers since October, 1943.

Joseph Kolodny, executive secretary of the association, refused to disclose details of the plan or to tell whether the rationing will involve the smoker. Cards for smokers and the presentation of an empty pack both have been tried here during the last few months.

Based on Previous Sales.

Kolodny said, however, that cigarets, which in most of the country have been sold to retailers in a hit or miss style resulting in black markets and runs on dealers, will be rationed by allocation. It is presumed that distribution to outlets will be based on sales made during a certain base period, probably before the national cigaret famine started months ago.

All of the national association's 2,800 distributors are expected to agree to function under the plan, which would mean virtually the entire country would be affected, it was said.

The national association, tobacco men said, believes the cigaret shortage is here for the duration. The new system is expected to result in a fair distribution of the limited supplies.

Flyer's Lunch Gives Him Lift of 5,000 Feet

How the use of a four ounce package of fudge, gum, chocolate drops, gum drops, fondant creams, licorice drops, and chocolate coated peanuts is adding 5,000 feet to the altitude army flyers may reach without an oxygen mask was described yesterday at the Chicago quartermaster depot.

All men on missions of three hours or more now receive the new "air crew lunch," which supplies a quick release of energy at great heights. One of several advantages it possesses over the standard type candy bar, previously issued, is that the package can be managed with one heavily mittened hand.

It Will Keep for Years.

The depot's office of technical information said the new ration also has these qualities:

It will keep for years without deteriorating and can withstand 160 degrees above and 66 degrees below zero temperature and up to 90 per cent humidity.

The assortment suits the men's taste, with enough variety in flavor and texture so that frequent use will not dull the appetite.

Able to See It in Dark.

First consideration, said the office, was a package the flyer could manage without having to take off his mittens. A box and sleeve container was developed, brightened with red, white, and blue, and the AAF insignia. The decoration not only makes the package more attractive but also makes it identifiable in a dark, crowded plane.

"The candies in the top half of the container will fall into the eater's mouth when the sleeve of the box is slid down past the top opening," the office said. "Fudge and gum are released from their compartment when the sleeve is pushed up. Picking up the container, sliding the sleeve, and freeing the candy for eating can all be done with one mitten covered hand."

In developing the new ration, the quartermaster depot had the aid of the physiology department of Northwestern university and the Nutrition Foundation of New York City.

Poplar, Wis., Jan. 14 [Special].—Maj. Richard I. Bong, 24, outstanding air hero of World War II., came home today to his family and the girl he will marry Feb. 10. Since his last visit home in May, 1944, Bong has won the congressional medal of honor and run his string of Jap planes to 40.

Arriving by train in Superior, Bong got a taste of his future wife's cooking at her Superior home before leaving with her by automobile for the 23 mile trip to the Bong farm home, two miles from Poplar. She is Marjorie Vattendahl, 21, a State Teachers' college senior.

At the Vattendahl home Marjorie emerged in an apron and led him back to the kitchen where she showed him a huge roast of beef sizzling in the oven. She sliced off a piece of the meat for him.

At the Bong home the couple was greeted by the flyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bong, and his five sisters and two brothers.

FIVE MORE TROOP SHIPS TO BE PUT ON HOSPITAL RUN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14 (AP).—Five more troop ships will be converted into hospital ships to speed return of sick and wounded soldiers from overseas, the war department disclosed today.

The new ships, which will have a capacity of 5,355 patients, will increase the fleet of ambulance vessels to 29, with a total capacity of more than 18,000.

BBC Ends G. I. Jokes; Nobody Will Tell Why

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP). — Nobody heard any jokes about Americans coming off the BBC today, but there was some mystery whether the British radio actually had banned them.

Theater and radio critic Jonah Barrington announced in the Sunday Chronicle that British Broadcasting corporation had forbidden radio comics to joke about Americans stationed in England because of Anglo-American relations.

A member of BBC's press liaison section said, "Nothing was known about it actually, but then it's Sunday, and you can't go very far on Sunday."

Humor Already Censored.

Notwithstanding it was Sunday, a representative of BBC's variety department considered the question.

"We haven't been issued any order on this subject," he said. "But mind you, that doesn't necessarily mean there hasn't been an order, or that there won't be one."

If Barrington is right, it simply means the BBC is putting an official stamp on a radio trend which has been noticeable since recent trans-Atlantic criticisms began. Anyway, says Barrington, BBC "has already censored humor into insensibility."

The listening public, incidentally, might ask:

"What's all the fuss about?"

This One Will Kill You.

Unlike stage gags, radio jests about Americans rarely have any sting. This is a specimen:

A gum chewing American soldier was riding on a train. He sat across from an old lady who, after watching the movement of his jaws for a while, leaned over and said: "It's no use your trying to talk to me, young man. I'm deaf as a post."

Barrington's report said the BBC also bans "any mention of bombed buildings [might create alarm and despondency], rockets and flying bombs [ditto], dropping a packet on Germany [gloating], pidgin English [racial problems], and the word 'damn.'"

DE GAULLE ASKS BID TO 'BIG 3' MEETING; HAS RED BACKING

PARIS, Jan. 14 (AP).—France, with Russian support, has asked Britain and the United States to invite Gen. De Gaulle to participate in the forthcoming "big three" meeting. Messages have been sent to London and Washington suggesting that an invitation would be "welcomed and readily accepted." No reply has been received, it was reported.

The French say that during De Gaulle's recent negotiations in Moscow with Marshal Stalin the Russian premier promised the French leader that the soviet would support France's claim to a voice in the allied councils, and would request that De Gaulle be included in the next meeting of the big three.

In return, French officials assert, De Gaulle agreed to support Russian views on territorial readjustments in eastern Europe, with the Russians backing French demands for supervision of the Rhineland. Paris would be a logical place for such a meeting, French officials say.

Rickenbacker Predicts 3 More Years of War

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 14 (AP).—This nation can look forward to at least three more years of war, at least 2 million casualties, and a debt of from 500 to 600 billion dollars before peace comes, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, told the Arizona Newspapers association at their annual meeting here today.

Air Forces Batter Von Rundstedt's Milling Columns.

PARIS, Jan. 15 [Monday]—(AP).—The German armies in the Belgian salient were in full retreat today, reeling back toward the Siegfried line, their lines broken and battered by a storm of fire from thousands of allied warplanes and by powerful ground blows.

Gen. Eisenhower's armies closed in on three sides of the riddled salient and squeezed the Nazis out to the east. Allied air fleets scourged the line of flight with a fury unparalleled since the German debacle in Normandy.

All available German rearguards were hurled at the United States 1st army, battering only seven miles from vital St. Vith, thru which German convoys were streaming toward the German border four miles beyond.

Houffalize, enemy base in what once was the center of the ominous Belgian bulge, was beleaguered by allied armies fighting three to five miles from the city on three sides. The main road out of Houffalize to St. Vith was severed.

Hundreds of Vehicles Riddled.

Hundreds of enemy vehicles were riddled, some caught bumper to bumper by clouds of fighter bombers as transports milled around trying to find a way out thru Houffalize.

All German positions in the Houffalize-Bastogne sector, along the Ourthe river and northeast toward Vielsalm appeared to be giving way. More than 20 towns were engulfed as the three allied armies surged forward as much as four and a half miles.

For the first time it became apparent that Field Marshal Von Rundstedt means to pull all the way back to the Siegfried line instead of making a stand short of the border around St. Vith.

Nazis Change Abruptly.

Adamant German resistance at the salient's shoulders north and south of Houffalize changed abruptly to rearguard action. Lt. Gen. Hodges' American 1st army, cutting the main escape road to St. Vith, drove to within three miles of Houffalize.

Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army was little more than six miles away on the south after sending tanks into Noville, four and a half miles below Houffalize.

The 3d, in gains up to four and a half miles, also knocked the Germans back from Bertogne, six miles southwest of Houffalize, and drove

Russian Drive Cracks Nazis' Line in Poland

LONDON, Jan. 15 [Monday]—(AP).—A Red army of perhaps 1,000,000 men shattered the enemy's Warsaw-Krakow defense line in Poland yesterday on the third day of Russia's greatest winter offensive, crossing the Nida river on a 37 mile front and driving to within 32 miles of Krakow, gateway to rich German Silesia and northern Czechoslovakia. Soviet spearheads were less than 64 miles from Silesia.

Berlin reported late last night that other powerful soviet armies had begun fresh major attacks north and south of Warsaw with the double arm of encircling that charred Polish capital and breaking thru to the mouth of the Vistula river in Danzig, thus sealing off German East Prussia.

The entire eastern front from the Baltic to Budapest appeared to be exploding into action in coördination with the swift Russian push toward Silesia, second in importance only to the Ruhr as a Nazi arsenal.

Stabs Below Warsaw.

While Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine army was attacking across the Nida, Berlin said other soviet troops went into action yesterday west of the Vistula river at Magnuszew and Pulawy, 33 and 65 miles southeast of Warsaw. These assaults coincided with Russian stabs along the Narew river north of Warsaw, the enemy said.

A Tass war observer quoted by the Moscow radio late last night said the German army at Warsaw was facing isolation because of the big breakthru in the south. The Germans had weakened their Warsaw-Krakow front by transferring divisions to try to save dying Budapest, he said.

Konev's troops gained up to 15 miles yesterday, and captured 200 more localities for a three day total of 555.

2,000 Germans Slain.

A midnight soviet bulletin said 2,000 Germans were slain at captured Pinczow, an important road hub and German stronghold, while other hundreds were slain north of Chmielnik in the surge to the Nida. The Russians claimed they already had destroyed more than 120 German tanks in several days of fierce fighting on the frozen plains, and Berlin declared the Nazis had knocked out 245 Russian tanks.

The Germans were bringing up reenforcements and throwing them into battle straight from the march, Moscow said, but were unable to halt the Russian war machine.

East Prussia Attacked.

In the southern part of Hungarian annexed Slovakia other soviet troops captured the rail junction town of Losonc [Lucenec], 60 miles northeast of Budapest, and Pelsoc [Plesivec], 37 miles northeast of Losonc. Forty other localities were taken in this sector as the Russians strove to roll up the eastern German salient in Slovakia.

Altho Moscow's bulletin did not mention East Prussia, the Germans said the Russians were also attacking there with 15 infantry divisions and several tank units supported by hundreds of big guns.

Inside wrecked Budapest the Russians tore another 200 blocks from the enemy's weakening grasp in the center of the city, seized the Keleti, or east rail junction, in Pest, took the suburban station of Csemer, and the town gas works.

MacArthur Seizes More Towns in 20 Mile Drive.

FIRST LUZON PICTURES.

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Jan. 15 [Monday]—(AP).—A 30-mile extension of the U. S. 6th army beachhead in Lingayen gulf to a total of 45 miles was announced today by Gen. MacArthur. Tank-led spearheads probing toward Manila crossed the Agno river on the south at Bayambang, 22 miles inland.

The western side of the beachhead was extended 20 miles almost to the road junction of Alaminos in a swift drive northwestward after capture of Port Sual.

On the east flank, a sweep of 10 miles took in the important rail and highway junction of Damortis, whose capture seals off all Japanese in the west coastal area from the main highway leading into the Benguet mountains, including the summer Philippine capital city of Baguio, now believed the seat of Japanese officials.

Hold Natural Barrier.

Crossing of the Agno at Bayambang meant the Yanks had passed a natural barrier for the enemy's possibly formidable stand in northern Luzon. The Agno is the deepest river crossing the central plains area which lead southward toward Manila, 92 miles away.

War Correspondent C. Yates McDaniel reported that negligible Japanese resistance was scattered as the Americans crossed the barrier.

"Main combat spearheads," he continued, "drove south unchecked by minor skirmishes and at a pace limited only by the ability of supply columns to keep up with them."

McDaniel said Port Sual, on the southern shore of Lingayen gulf, was occupied after a "short, sharp fight against a small band of entrenched enemy."

Advance Eight Miles.

The westernmost American columns registered an eight mile advance in 24 hours to reach Mangatarem, 19 miles south of Lingayen, after brushing aside two enemy skirmishing parties of 150 men each. A few Japanese were killed and the remainder fled.

Another Yank column approached Catablan, 20 miles southeast of Lingayen, after a clash in which 82 Japanese and a few Americans were killed. The enemy opened up from foxholes and dugouts with small arms and artillery. Damortis was taken without meeting anything stronger than sniper fire.

Japs Can't Concentrate.

A spokesman said fairly stiff resistance was reported in the hills of MacArthur's eastern flank, but the bulletin reported the enemy was unable to concentrate his forces.

American planes raked the entire island of Luzon, heavily pounding railroad equipment, trucks, air fields and bivouac areas. Twenty-six locomotives and 300 freight cars were wiped out in five days of raids, as well as more than 400 motor vehicles and eleven tanks.

Japs Abandon River Line.

MacArthur said such operations against enemy communications "imposed severe limitations" on Japan's ability to shift men and supplies northward.

When the American motorized patrols reached the Agno river they found the Japanese had

These Yanks Should Learn the Rules

WITH THE U. S. 84TH INFANTRY DIVISION ON THE BELGIAN FRONT, Jan. 14 (AP).—This "Railsplitter" division has been in combat only a couple of months or so and it must be excused if it keeps pulling rookie tricks.

Maj. Ronald L. Kolb of Fond du Lac, Wis., should have known better. He is the commander of the 1st battalion of the 334th regiment. Last night he led a five man patrol on a little reconnaissance mission.

Stooging around out there in the Ardennes woods, they suddenly saw a tall figure strolling down the trail. Maj. Kolb had his men hide beside the trail. He stepped behind a tree until the figure came up and then jumped out in front of it and said sharply:

"Haende hoch!" [Hands up.]

The enemy promptly put both hands up. Playing follow the leader, the German soldiers behind him did the same thing.

The major discovered the tall one was a German captain commanding a battalion.

Altho the German carried a pistol he made no trouble. However, other patrols did, so Kolb and his crowd had to stay hidden with their prisoners all night. When dawn came Kolb and his company returned safely.

* *

Maj. William C. Stone of Westminster, Md., also should have known better. He is the commander of the 1st battalion of the 335th regiment, which for two days unsuccessfully attacked a little Belgian village, enemy tanks, and infantry men, and forced them to withdraw.

So the major called for long, white underwear to provide camouflage—if not charm—for the third attack. A rush order was sent rearward and up came white longies.

Pulling them over their other clothes, Stone's soldiers waited for darkness. Then, white against the snow, they moved stealthily across the field. For 800 yards they went undetected. Then it was too late to stop them. By daylight the job was done.

In the vicinity of vital river crossings at Urbiztondo and Bayambang, respectively 21 and 26 miles by road from the gulf, the patrols came upon strongly prepared but empty positions.

No Sign of Japs.

There were side supply trails from the main roads, stoutly constructed dugouts and pillboxes and a whole system of interconnecting trenches, but not a sign of a Japanese. Bridges across the river had been destroyed, and this added to the supply problem for the advance.

Other troops, securing the east flank of the invasion bulge, advanced into the Benguet mountain foothills northwest of Pozorrubio, 29 miles by road from Lingayen. It was in this vicinity that the Japanese put up their only determined resistance to the invasion. Pressure was being maintained against their gun positions in the foothills.

Tells of Attack on Carriers.

ABOARD AN ESCORT CARRIER OFF LUZON, JAN. 10 [Delayed] (AP).—This small carrier and others like it were the first American ships in this war to push thru the China sea on their way to deliver Gen. MacArthur and his troops to Lingayen gulf.

Rear Adm. Calvin T. Durgin's escort carriers, spearheading the huge mass of shipping required to carry troops and supplies for the big land campaign, underwent 14 Japanese air attacks in five days.

Adm. Durgin's carrier planes, taking off and landing on the small flight decks, pitching and rolling in seas at times so heavy spray washed over the bridges, not only protected the carrier groups but helped cover transport convoys and the heavy warships of the bombardment group.

1,500 Sorties in Five Days.

The escort carrier pilots flew 1,500 sorties in five days, nearly all as protection for the ships. More than 40 Japanese planes were downed before they could reach the carrier group, but a few got thru the screen as early as Jan. 4. One Zeke was shot down so close to a carrier that fragments from the disintegrated plane spattered on the deck.

That was a busy afternoon which Gen. MacArthur's bulletin described as "repeated and desperate attacks against our naval formations — inflicting some loss and damage."

Here is a day by day log of the struggle up the China sea:

Jan. 4: Yank planes flew 230 sorties without loss. One Japanese plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire. Enemy planes continually skirted the formation.

30 Planes Shot Down.

Jan. 5.: Thirty Japanese planes were shot down. Two enemy destroyers were located and one was crippled, the other left apparently sinking. Carrier planes flew 305 sorties.

Jan. 6.: Eight Japanese planes were destroyed. American planes sank small craft in Lingayen harbor, damaged three railroad bridges, and blew up a large ammunition dump. Carrier planes flew 309 sorties.

Jan. 7.: Three Japanese planes were destroyed. Fifty tons of bombs were dropped on shore installations, more small craft were sunk, and enemy troop movements were discovered. Fifty trucks, most of them carrying troops, were destroyed. Three tanks were demolished, three fuel dumps and an ammunition dump blown up. Fifteen buildings, including barracks, offices, and storage structures, were bombed and Japanese anti-aircraft positions blasted. Carrier planes flew 316 sorties.

Jan. 8.: Carrier planes flew 315 sorties, but the results were not divulged.

[Events after Jan. 8 were not disclosed.]

Reports Indo-China Sweep.

ABOARD A CARRIER TASK FORCE FLAGSHIP, Jan. 12 [Delayed] [Via navy radio] (AP).—Japan lost control of her vital South China sea routes today as Vice Adm. McCain's carrier planes swept in to the Asiatic mainland and attacked harbors, shipping, seaplane bases, and air fields along the coast of French Indo-China.

This brilliant operation was the deepest penetration into the enemy's waters since the Pacific war started. Japan's ocean lifeline between the mainland and her rich conquered territories in the Dutch Indies and around Singapore runs thru the South China sea.

Route of War Needs.

Oil, rubber, quinine and hundreds of other war essentials reach the homeland along this route.

Navy planes bombed, strafed, and torpedoed shipping and attacked other targets from the vicinity of Saigon, the capital, to Camranh bay, 150 miles northward. The enemy failed to challenge the American planes in the air and Japanese surface ships were helpless before the attackers.

Blast Three Convoys.

Two enemy convoys between Saigon and Camranh bay and one larger convoy off the coast to the north were among the targets. Out of the ships in the convoys eight were reported definitely sunk or destroyed, nine probably sunk, and the others damaged.

Those sunk included a medium cargo ship, four destroyer escorts, and three small coastal cargo carriers.

[Adm. Nimitz, reporting the action in a bulletin from Pearl Harbor, said 25 enemy warships were sunk and 13 others damaged, and revealed the attack had gone into its second day, which would be Friday, United States time. Today official silence continued to cloak 3d fleet activities.]

REPORTS CAR STOLEN.

Theft of his automobile parked in front of his home was reported to police yesterday by Elmer Brinkman, 6822 Union av.

TWO B-29 FLEETS BOMB FORMOSA AND HONSHU ISLE

Count 110 SuperForts, Says Tokyo.

Washington, D. C.,—Jan. 14 (AP).—Super Fortresses landed twin blows at Japanese targets on Formosa and the island of Honshu today without losing a single one of their number to enemy action.

More than 100 of the sky dreadnaughts took part in each attack, pouring destruction on military and industrial targets in daylight. Opposition was weak to moderate.

The 20th air force in a bulletin here said visual bombing was accomplished at Formosa with good results, the 20th bomber command flying from China bases to plunge their bombs once more into the strategic link in the Japanese island chain to the Philippines. Fighter opposition was lacking.

Hit Nagoya Air Plants.

The 21st bomber command from Saipan Island struck at the Nagoya industrial area on Honshu with precision instruments, and results were not observed. Moderate fighter opposition was encountered. Nagoya is a huge aircraft manufacturing center.

Tokyo radio was prompt with claims that damage to military targets in Honshu's industrial city of Nagoya was "negligible," altho it admitted that the American force, which it said was made up of more than 60 bombers, was over the island for an hour and a half. Tokyo said the earlier Formosa attack was made by 50 planes.

Second Raid of Year.

This was the second time the huge bombers had hit Formosa and Honshu in force since the start of the year. The Japanese had reported frequent visits of single or small numbers of the big bombers over Honshu, including the Tokyo area.

The enemy said several bombers were brought down over Nagoya. The Tokyo broadcasts said "damage to civilian residential quarters was restricted to a minimum." The Japanese said "hot interception" over Honshu caused the Super Forts to unload their bombs at random.

Claim Shrine Is Hit.

Referring to the Honshu strike, the Jap bulletin said bombs were dropped in the compounds of the grand shrine of Tokouke or outer shrine of the Ise grand shrine, "and caused two ritual purification halls and five halls for sacred music and dance to be demolished. Apart from the above defilement the enemy bombing caused slight damage to our side."

LIBERATORS ATTACK PARAMUSHIRO WITH FOUR TONS OF BOMBS

HDQ., 11TH AIR FORCE, Adak, Alaska, Jan. 13 [Delayed]—(AP).—For the third straight day Liberators today bombed the Japanese home island of Paramushiro. An hour earlier a force of Mitchell bombers pounded Torishima, a small island outpost on the approaches of Paramushiro.

The Mitchells hit the thousand foot long island with more than 8,000 pounds of in incendiaries, leaving the entire east end in flames, and in a second run over the target poured 4,000 rounds of .50 caliber ammunition into the wreckage.

When the Liberators arrived over Suribachi airdrome, which was the target of navy shelling Jan. 5, pilots found clear weather for the second day in the series of attacks and bombed accurately from high altitudes. All bombs landed in the target area.

G. I.s FIGHT FOUR DAYS FOR LUZON FORTIFIED HILL

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

AT A FORWARD OBSERVATION POST ON OUR LINGAYEN BEACHHEAD, Jan. 14.—American troops in the central sector of our beachhead have captured Morling hill, five miles inland, after four days of dogged fighting.

Doughboys moved slowly and cautiously thru machine gun and sniper positions to the top of the hill, where they caught the remaining pocket of Jap defenders in a horseshoe shaped ridge.

Few had heard of Morling hill in pre-invasion briefings. On the map its 318 feet of altitude did not look particularly formidable. Yet the veteran American troops who had run thru five miles of broken terrain on invasion day against little opposition were forced to work over and around this hill for the next four days to gain their next thousand yards. To their right the advance continued almost unimpeded, leaving the troops on Morling hill far behind.

The Japs made their first stand purely a delaying action in these hills. Morling is one of the numerous bits of high ground necessary to get the still higher ground to the east and north, of which one of the most important objectives is Mount Alava, 520 feet high.

Jap Positions Strong.

The enemy defenses on Morling were lightly held but well organized. Along the upper slopes forced Filipino labor had built machine gun dugouts 75 feet apart, with snipers posted in trees and behind bushes. These dugouts were lined with bamboo and contained light machine guns.

More elaborate dugouts on Morling and other high ground are built in so deeply along the upper slopes that only a direct hit from shellfire would knock them out.

Some of the slopes on Morling are almost vertical and the draws below are generally exposed, making the use of tanks in this attack undesirable. Amphibious armor was used at point-blank range to knock out some machine gun nests, however.

Shelled by Jap Guns.

Lt. Arthur A. Powell of Bartlesville, Okla., commanded the forward observation post. He called attention to the Bued river directly between the Americans and Morling.

"The Japs have a Pistol Pete downstream that has been shooting up the river on our crossing to Morling," he said, "and on that ridge they have a dozen guns that open up every once in awhile. They chased us off this observation post four times with 75 mm. We have been working it over, tho, and I think we got one this morning."

Armored amphibious craft had been consistently under fire crossing Bued river but most of them got thru and participated in the attack on Morling.

Filipino Corrects Range.

At a nearby artillery observation post a Filipino who knew the positions of the Jap defenses because he had helped to build them, spotted our fire, gesticulating with his hands to correct the range. He jumped up and down with excitement when our guns got the range. The barrage lasted a half hour, then the infantry proceeded up the slopes. An occasional Jap hurdled out of his nest and ran for cover. This went on for three hours before the top of the hill was reached. One American officer was killed. There were several other casualties from machine gun and sniper fire.

3,000 SOLDIERS, IN SO. PACIFIC 2 YEARS RETURN

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14 [Special].—Three thousand war weary and wounded overseas veterans set foot on United States soil again yesterday for the first time in more than two years. They were passengers on a large navy transport which docked from the South Pacific.

With them on the homeward bound voyage were 25 Australian wives and 10 babies of navy men, who got their first glimpse of America thru the portholes of the same ship.

Train, buses and ambulances, manned by army and navy personnel and Red Cross workers, cared for the hundreds of veterans as they streamed from the huge ship. They were whisked away from docks to hospitals and other shore establishments for final checkups and care before being granted leaves to visit home.

This Yank Shoots First, Then Asks Permission

ABOARD ADM. KINKAID'S 7TH FLEET FLAGSHIP, Lingayen gulf, Jan. 14 (AP).—A navy Wildcat fighter pilot leading a flight, located three enemy fighters on the ground at Naguilian air field. He reported his find by radio and dutifully asked permission to strafe. Lt. Com. Cummings Krol, Paterson, N. J., operations officer, granted permission. "Thank you," came back the flight leader. "I already have them smoking."

ROBBED OF PURSE AND KEYS.

Mrs. Victoria Dembrowski, 4225 Potomac av., told police yesterday that a man about 30 took her purse containing $2 and a bunch of keys while she was walking in front of 4240 Crystal st.

BRITISH REVEAL HEAVY TOLL IN V-BOMB SMASH

Scores Killed in Their Homes, Many Injured.

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP).—Scores of Britons were killed in their homes and in the streets, and many others were injured or trapped under debris as a flurry of German V-bombs crashed into southern England recently.

Nazi radio propagandists said "greater London was under fire by day and night." The official British bulletin stuck to the routine, however: "There was enemy air activity during the last 24 hours . . . damage and casualties were caused."

Between the two pronouncements lay "incidents" of high drama and poignancy—of broken lives in smashed houses, stores, churches, and clubs.

New-Born Infant Saved.

One V-bomb struck a house in southern England recently only an hour after the birth of a baby there. The building was demolished and wreckage crashed down upon mother and baby, but both were saved.

These were among the chief incidents disclosed:

A church was smashed when a V-bomb fell in the district. Six bodies were taken from the wreckage, and of the number pulled out injured, two subsequently died. Destruction was spread along the store-lined street.

One family of four was killed while they slept. Another family of seven was wiped out when a bomb smashed their house.

Flattens Row of Houses.

A woman was wheeling her baby carriage in the street. A V-bomb fell. The carriage and baby were blown to atoms, but the woman escaped with slight injuries.

A bomb flattened a whole row of houses, killing an unestimated number of persons. At one house rescuers dug in and talked cheerfully to three men whom they could see pinned under the timbers.

Two hundred children had gathered for a New Year's party. Their hosts were the community air raid wardens. A bomb fell near-by and the wardens, suddenly "otherwise engaged," left one member behind to break the news to the youngsters that the "party's off."

BRITISH GAIN 16 MILES IN DRIVE UPON MANDALAY

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Jan. 14 (AP).—British troops driving toward Rangoon and Mandalay have occupied four more towns in the Burma jungles with advanced units in the lower Chindwin district reaching a point 30 miles from Mandalay, headquarters announced today.

Spearheads of Lt. Gen. William J. Slim's British 14th army driving toward Burma's second city made a 16 mile advance south of Shwebo and entered Wetlet on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway line, 30 miles north of Mandalay.

British commando forces which went ashore on the west coast 32 miles southeast of Akyab occupied the town of Myebon despite Japanese artillery and machine gun fire, a bulletin said.

Take Two More Towns.

Other units operating in the Chindwin area have occupied Kani and Alon. Kani is a steamer station on the west bank of the Chindwin riven 62 airline miles south-southeast of Kalewa. Alon is on the Mandalay-Ye-U branch railway six miles northwest of Monywa.

Japanese artillery shelled British positions in the Kaladan valley 100 miles southeast of Kyauktaw, the bulletin said, adding that Chinese troops continued pressing enemy units into a jungle pocket midway between Tonkwa and the Shwell river.

Land Behind Japs.

The forces which landed on Hunters bay in the Myebon peninsula landed against firm Japanese opposition and drove two and one-half miles north to enter the town of Myebon and secure positions west of the village, the bulletin said. The commandos landed behind retreating enemy units that formerly garrisoned the port of Akyab.

Allied fighter-bomber attacks yesterday against enemy communications in the Lashio area, along the Irrawaddy river and along the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad, resulted in damage to Japanese transport, including nearly 100 river craft.

TWO FLEE AMIDST POLICE FIRE.
Two young men who broke into the Peter Fox Sons poultry shop at 1132 Fulton st. escaped yesterday amidst a volley of shots fired by four pursuing policemen as the men ran across a vacant lot.

DESPERATE BID MADE BY JAPS ON BURMA ROAD

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 14 (AP).—Japanese troops are clinging desperately to the Burma road border town of Wanting in an effort to prevent a junction of Chinese forces converging from Yunnan province and Burma, Maj. Gen. Wedemeyer's headquarters announced tonight.

The Chinese now control all but one of the hills surrounding the town after capturing the highest peak, Wellungshan, and killing perhaps 400 enemy soldiers.

Attempted Japanese counter-attacks have been broken up before they started by accurate Chinese artillery fire, directed by American liaison planes. United States 14th air force planes have bombed and strafed Japanese lines, causing heavy casualties, the announcement said.

YANK UNIT SEES ONLY FIVE JAPS; 4 ARE DEAD NOW

Decatur Man's Outfit Captures Fifth.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOBUAN, Luzon, P. I., Jan. 13 [Delayed].—A unit commanded by Lt. Norman Sanders of Decatur, Ill., has encountered few Japs on Luzon but has killed four, captured one, and seized an automobile.

Yesterday Lt. Sanders led a patrol up a road from Sual to Uyong, which already had been secured. Riding in LVTs [landing vehicles, tracked, commonly known as "alligators"], the patrol found three cars concealed in the roadside brush. Riflemen investigated.

Pvt. James Smith of Bigfork, Minn., saw a moving figure and fired. Pvt. Earl Strimplin of Culver City, Cal., fired on another crawling figure. Closing in with Sgt. Tommy Rahija and Pvt. Steve Kaszuba, both of Kansas City, Mo., they found two dead Japs. They also seized a prisoner.

Jap Officer Killed.

Earlier, Lt. Sanders and his men captured a new automobile at a road block near Laois, southeast of Uyong, after Japs drove up to the block in the darkness. The enemy escaped, but later two of them, including an officer, were killed.

The amtrack [amphibious tractor] boys won the battle of the Agno river bend last night.

In point of ammunition expended, it was probably the biggest battle of the war on northwest Luzon. When the shooting was over, not a Jap was left alive or dead either.

Turn Off Radio.

During the firing, which lasted almost all night, headquarters was unable to reach the amphibious tractor outfit to determine the strength of the attack. The amtrackers had turned off their radio generator so the Japs wouldn't hear it. Nobody was foolish enough to try approaching their perimeter on foot. And yet it was hard to understand fighting so far back of the front.

At first light the amtrackers cautiously emerged from their holes, dug hastily the night before when somebody had heard 200 Japs were in the neighborhood. Their store of hand grenades and machine gun and rifle ammunition was almost gone. They had fired at every sound all night.

What they saw caused a lot of red faces. There wasn't a Jap in sight. And there hadn't been.

BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET COMMANDER ESCAPES BOMB AT LINGAYEN

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Leyte, Jan. 14 (AP).—British naval units soon will join America's Pacific fleet in striking coördinated blows at the Japanese, Adm. Bruce Fraser said here today.

Adm. Bruce Fraser.

The commander in chief of the British Pacific fleet disclosed that he missed death only by a few feet during the American landings on Lingayen gulf. He was only a short distance from the bomb explosion which killed British Lt. Gen. William Lumsden and Time Magazine Correspondent William Chickering when Japanese flyers attacked a United States warship.

Fraser said he left Gen. Lumsden, personal representative of Prime Minister Churchill, only a few minutes before the ship was hit, and was standing a few paces away when the bomb exploded. He said he escaped with "only a bit of a bang in the ears."

ALLIES RETURN ROME NEWS TO PRIVATE HANDS

ROME, Jan. 14 (AP).—Allied headquarters turned Rome news gathering and dissemination back to private enterprise today, suspending publication of the newspaper Corriere di Roma and the operation of the united nations news services, both projects of headquarters' psychological warfare branch. Tomorrow the Rome press will begin an experiment in coöperative news gathering, and world news agencies will begin supplying Rome newspapers.

Corriere di Roma, in the seven months since the capture of Rome, increased its circulation to 200,000, becoming the largest daily in the city. It was not under the same newsprint restrictions as other Rome newspapers. In addition, it was considered the official allied organ.

The coöperative A. N. S. A.—Agenzia Nazionale Stampa Associata—which comprises Rome's 10 daily publications, will gather local news with an initial staff of 10. A. N. S. A. will exchange news with the world agencies.

ADD SOUTHWEST FIELDS AS B-29 TRAINING SITES

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 14 (AP).—The army air forces flying training command has taken over training of pilots and flight engineers who will fly the B-29 Super Fortresses in combat, it was announced today at training command headquarters.

Some of the operational duties of the "big three" of the Super Forts now can be explained, it was said. The "big three" consist of the airplane commander, who actually flies the plane, the pilot, who serves as co-pilot, and an officer whose duty it is to "engineer" the battle plane to and from its bomb rendezvous.

Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., is already site of a training command four-engined specialized school. Roswell army air field, N. M., will convert to B-29 training about the middle of February, it was announced here at training command headquarters, and Randolph field, near San Antonio, will start Super Fort training operations late in the spring.

BULGE BROKEN, NAZIS FLEEING TO SIEGFRIED LINE

on to the Ourthe river, two miles north, effecting another junction with the British 2d army.

The 1st army forces coming down from the northwest joined the British west of Houffalize, forming a solid western front and trapping odd pockets of the enemy.

9th Army Repulses Attack.

In northeastern France, the Germans struck with renewed fury at Lt. Gen. Patch's United States 7th army lines eight miles inside Alsace north of Strasbourg, coming over with tanks and flamethrowers in an attack which by late accounts had gained them little or nothing.

Local action elsewhere on the western front found Lt. Gen. Simpson's United States 9th army beating off a small counter-attack at Wurm on the Roer river front north of Aachen and the British in eastern Holland, capturing the village of Gebroek near Maesyck on the long-dormant Maas [Meuse] river front.

The burden of fighting in Belgium veered eastward on the second day of Hodges' general 1st army assault along the northern flank of the Ardennes salient.

Smash Into Thirimont.

The 30th infantry division smashed back into Thirimont, seven miles north of St. Vith, after being driven out on Saturday by a battalion of infantry and 10 tanks. Front reports said doughboys now held half the town.

The 30th seized Hedemont, three miles south of Malmedy. Other forces were compelled to retire from Heraumont, four miles farther southwest near the Salm river.

A three mile thrust by the 3d armored and 83d infantry divisions cut the Houffalize-St. Vith highway west of Cherain after routing the Germans from the southern edge of the Ardennes forest. Tanks nosed on to within three miles northeast of Houffalize.

The emptying German apex west of Houffalize was from four to five miles wide at its base. British and American troops were trying to crush it together and catch what was left of a task force of 25 tanks and a battalion or so of infantry.

This enemy force struck three times at Bertogne, six miles southwest of Houffalize, trying to reopen that vital road junction to permit escape of other forces farther west.

As the Germans were driven back here, other 3d army troops battled up near Compogne, two miles east of Bertogne.

Air Borne Troops Advance.

As Patton's 3d army troops smashed the Germans back, the British were moving in only three and a half miles to the north after sweeping up five or more villages, including Nieramont, six miles due west of Houffalize.

The 101st air borne division some four miles east of Bertogne lashed out a mile and a quarter north of Bastogne, threatening the flank of this troublesome enemy force.

The 101st annihilated the German garrison at Foy, but 18 enemy tanks which had supported it got away and headed up the highway to Houffalize with the paratroopers in pursuit.

The 84th infantry division overran four or more towns in this sector along the Ourthe river and was pushing thru the forest north of Wibrin, four miles northwest of Houffalize.

Third army infantry advanced a mile to the south bank of the Wiltz river in northern Luxemburg, four and a half miles east of Bastogne. They also occupied Wasserbillig, on the German border 18 miles north of Luxemburg City at the junction of the Saar and Moselle rivers.

Fighting flared again along the Saar front, where doughboys captured Tettingen, three miles inside Germany just east of the lower Luxemburg border, and then drove back a counter-attack northeast of the town.

Germans Flee from Belgium

REARGUARDS FIGHT TO DELAY YANK ADVANCE

Nazis Flee Thru Gap 6 Miles Wide.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMORED DIVISION NEAR HOUFFALIZE, Belgium, Jan. 14.—Disorganized German columns today were fleeing eastward thru the six mile wide Houffalize gap, but those Germans whose job it was to hold the shoulders of the gap against the advancing American 1st army fought tenaciously.

The Germans fought, but they yielded icy slopes and dense spruce woods and bitter, snowy ground slowly to our massed artillery and plunging infantry men and tank soldiers.

For the Germans trapped in the pocket west of Houffalize there now are only three secondary back roads leading eastward. Each of these roads was under artillery fire and attacks by swarms of fighter planes.

83d Division on Flank.

Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose's 3d armored division last night cut Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's last main supply and escape route, the road from Houffalize to St. Vith. Then 3d army forward elements reached this same road southwest of Houffalize only six miles away.

Yesterday the 83d division, on the flank of the 3d armored, after a continuous 48 hour offensive, captured the villages of Petitte Langlir and Langlir between Bihain and Bovigny, southwest of Salmchateau. They plunged on with orders to clear the Bois de Bonce by daylight. They cleared that snow encrusted forest by 4:30 a. m., enabling the 3d armored to resume its drive with its flank protected.

Meanwhile, Gen. Rose had pushed an armored reconnaissance battalion south from Bihain. By nightfall Friday it had a road block southeast of Bihain. Yesterday Rose dismounted his cavalry men from their light tanks, bunched them on the back of half a dozen Sherman tanks and the attack went forward to capture hills overlooking strategic crossroads and the village of Sommeraine, northeast of Houffalize.

Brutal and Tough Going.

It was as brutal and tough, both in fighting and terrain, as anything these spearhead tankers had taken before, said one captain.

Fighting as infantry men in the bitter cold, the dismounted calvary men worked thru the woods while their tanks huffed and puffed over bogging trails and firebreaks.

Hours later the cavalry reached Hill 480, attacking it from the east.

"The Germans seemed completely disorganized," an officer said. "We saw 300 men rush down the slopes into Sommermaine. And their vehicles started pouring down the road until we captured the road junction and set up a strong block from both sides."

And today this outfit, while holding the road block, was fighting east toward another road junction, Cherain, for which the Germans were fighting savagely. They have been joined on this front by a larger task force, and still another group, headed by Lt. Col. Mathew W. Kane, Des Moines, Ia., is approaching Cherain from another direction.

CHARGES STETTINIUS LEFT OUT OF STALIN PARLEY DELIBERATELY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14 (AP).—Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] expressed belief today that Secretary of State Stettinius is "deliberately" being kept away from the forthcoming Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill conference.

Brewster told a reporter he believes Stettinius' participation in the inter-American conference at Mexico City in mid-February "purposely" will conflict with the probable date of the big three meeting. That, he said, plus the fact that Harry Hopkins, Presidential confidant, is in London now, "looks like a conspiracy" to shove aside Stettinius and the state department in conducting this nation's most important foreign relations.

Brewster's assertion followed a speech in which he told the women's patriotic conference on national defense he thought the absence of the then Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, affected the outcome of the big three conference at Teheran. The senator said he had been informed that "Stalin laid down the formula at the beginning and still held to it there at the end."

SAVES AMERICAN BATTALION FROM NAZIS' BIG PUSH

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 99TH DIVISION NEAR THE GERMAN BORDER, Jan. 14.—When Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's Ardennes offensive surged around the Monschau shoulder on Dec. 16, its full force hit the 99th division, until then previously untried in battle. Altho the 99th took heavy losses, one of the reasons it remained a fighting unit was Lt. Col. Jack Allen, Libertyville, Ill.

Allen had the 3d battalion of the 393d regiment. It gave ground like other units of the division which at times was fighting elements of two panzer [armored] divisions, an SS [elite guard] division, and five volksgrenadier [home guards] divisions. Like three other battalions, it was cut off and surrounded.

Holds Men Together.

But the Germans didn't punch any holes in Allen's lines. He retained command of his men altho communications with other battalions and regiments were cut as the Germans broke into towns which had been rest areas only a day before. And he fought his men back until with the help of the battlewise 1st and 2d infantry divisions, the 99th could re-form and help make Bullingen [Bulange] a hot corner and a firm shoulder against which the Nazi tides broke.

There was one time tho when Allen's situation looked desperate. Not knowing what the German plans were, Allen decided the only way to find out was to go out and contact the enemy.

With himself at the head, Allen organized a 30 man patrol and took off into no man's land. Observed by the Germans, Allen pushed on, fording a swollen, icy stream into the Siegfried line while under intense small arms and mortar fire.

Awarded Silver Star.

The Germans made the patrol's trip hot but Allen learned what he wanted to know. He found the Germans steadily being reënforced, which made the position of his own battalion untenable.

So, still under heavy fire he directed the retirement of his patrol. He was the last man to return to his own lines, where he ordered a withdrawal to better terrain.

For this gallantry and bravery, it was announced today, Col. Allen has been awarded the silver star.

1,200 Evacuees Arrive in Limoges from La Rochelle

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 14.—The first convoy of about 1,200 refugees from the La Rochelle region on the French Atlantic coast, evacuated under a truce between the Germans and allies, reached Limoges today. La Rochelle is one of the Atlantic ports in which 100,000 German troops are still holding on.

YANK FLYERS BAG 232 NAZI PLANES IN AIR BATTLES

One Mustang Group Sets Record of 56.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Jan. 15 [Monday]—(AP).—The R. A. F. bombed Berlin and dealt another heavy blow to German synthetic oil production last night, the air ministry announced today in a bulletin that said heavy bombers "in very great strength" heaped tons of explosives upon the Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg and on a fuel depot at Dulmen.

LONDON, Jan. 15 [Monday]—(AP).—Nearly 4,000 allied warplanes attacked Germany's communications and oil resources yesterday and scourged the enemy line of retreat in Belgium, knocking down at least 232 Nazi fighters in sky battles that cost at least 45 planes.

More than 1,750 United States heavy bombers and fighter escorts dealt a great blow to enemy oil plants and depots under a special order of the day from Lt. Gen. Spaatz, commander of United States strategic air forces in Europe, who told them German reserves now were critical.

In the best flying weather in many days, medium, light, and fighter bombers swarmed up and riddled hundreds of enemy vehicles of all types fleeing from Belgium.

Fighter Planes Get 149.

The German air force rose in great strength, particularly in an effort to protect its oil supply, and British-based American planes alone knocked out 189 of them—149 by fighter planes who thus set a new record for the United States 8th air force.

The 357th Mustang group commanded by Lt. Col. Irwin Dregne, Viroqua, Wis., set a new record for planes shot down in a single day, bagging 56. This eclipsed the mark set by the 352d Mustang group on Nov. 2, 1944. Dregne assumed command only Saturday.

German fighter plane packs ranging up to 200 planes swarmed to the defense of a series of vital oil refineries and storage depots within 120 miles of Berlin, but were cut down by 850 American fighters covering the bombers.

31 Kills for Bombers.

Bomber gunners scored 31 kills, and three more enemy planes were destroyed while trying to take off. Mustangs screening R. A. F. Halifaxes bombing rail yards at Saarbrucken feeding the Strasbourg front downed six more enemy interceptors.

The Germans threw up their air umbrella in an effort to protect the big oil refineries at Hemmingstedt on the Danish peninsula and Magdeburg, 100 miles west of Berlin. German planes also were sacrificed at two important camouflaged oil storage depots and the big Goering Steel mills at Hallendorf, all in the Magdeburg-Brunswick area.

Attacks were pressed home at Derben, where a vast underground reservoir holding 170,000 tons of German army fuel, was reported, and other storage facilities at Ehmen.

Single air kills were made by Lt. Richard Freuchtenight, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Lt. Sidney Stitcher, Fenimore, Wis.; Lt. Robert Barnard, Freeport, Ill.; Lt. Dale Jones, Chariton, Ia.; Lt. Darrell Beschen, Dubuque, Ia.; Lt. Richard Black, Olney, Ill.; Lt. Duane Delso, Muncie, Ind.; Lt. Richard Vansickle, Fife Lakes, Mich.; Lt. Raymond Davis, Ames, Ia.; Lt. Col. U. S. 7TH ARMY HALTS 5 PUNCHES THROWN BY NAZIS

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Jan. 13 [Delayed].—The Germans' two weeks old offensive against Lt. Gen. Patch's forces in Alsace appeared stalled today both north and south of Strasbourg.

At other points along the 60 mile front of the 7th, the Yanks' tenacious and successful defense has kept the enemy from strategic roads and vital towns.

The Germans have thrown these five punches since the start of their drive New Year's eve:

1. They hit west of the Vosges mountains and were held after bitter fighting around Gros Rederching and Rimling.

2. They came toward the Haardt forest [the German name for the lower Vosges which are above the Saverne gap] and gained some ground in what is known as the Bitche bulge, but Americans sealed off the area and kept them from vital highway 49.

Leads to Eastern Plain.

Highway 49 leads into the eastern plain at Ingwiller and into the western flatland at Tiefenbach. The Yanks have captured high ground northwest of Wildenguth in the Bitche salient.

3. The Germans sent troops, tanks, and guns across the Rhine river north of Strasbourg and hold Gambsheim, Offendorf, Herrlisheim, and Drusenheim. The bridgehead at Gambsheim is the closet to Strasbourg, being eight miles from the city's outskirts.

The enemy was able to reach the French side of the river because at one time we held the area thinly and Germans could find concealment in the woods and marshes. This has been the Germans' most spectacular move, but not their strongest. Thus far Americans have neutralized and contained the bridgehead and our artillery is zeroed in on it. As yet the Germans have no bridge across the river in this sector and must use barges, rubber boats, and rafts to bring over replacements.

Attack from Colmar Pocket.

4. The Germans attacked south of Strasbourg from the Colmar pocket, an irritant since the 7th army first reached the Alsace plain. This attack was on a larger scale than the river crossing north of Strasbourg, the Germans hurling infantry and tanks up the road paralleling the Rhine-Rhone canal and capturing a French garrison at Obenheim.

The French are strengthening their positions along the Ill river, which winds northward in the area west of the Rhine. South of Erstein, which is 10 miles below Strasbourg, there is a deep east-west ditch. The Germans are being held in the slim finger of ground bounded by the Ill on their west and the ditch on their north.

5. The biggest German assault came in northern Alsace, from the Wissembourg gap toward the Haguenau forest. When the 7th army went on the defensive, it was decided to give up the toehold in Germany as the American lines were very extended. The forces withdrew secretly and in complete order south across the Lauter river and thru Wissembourg to a line approximately that of the old Maginot positions in this neighborhood.

The army's intelligence branch—G-2—has played an important part in Lt. Gen. Patch's successful defense and thru its efforts the operations branch—G-3—has been enabled to shift its forces about the front to meet all threats.

Hatten and Rittershoffen were being reduced to not much more than names on a map in the Germans' fight to gain these keys to the Haguenau forest and the northwestern plain of Alsace. Armor and infantry continued to slug it out in what remained of the streets of Hatten and the southeastern tip of Rittershoffen, and from both sides artillery roared in all the daylight hours.

It was estimated the enemy has lost more than 90 tanks in this sector and farther west since New Year's day.

An American unit, figured at about a battalion in strength, had been surrounded by the Germans for two days in Hatten. Our air force dropped bundles of supplies to the infantrymen, and three of the bundles hit the mark. Late today our tanks and more infantry broke thru to make and maintain full contact with the battalion.

Whenever the Germans drop back from a position in Hatten and Rittershoffen they set the buildings afire, and this, combined with the heavy blows of the tanks, tank destroyers, and artillery, is leveling the villages.

MORE G.I.'S FACE ARMY TRIAL IN SUPPLY THEFTS

PARIS, Jan. 14 (AP).—The fifth group of a total of 184 American soldiers accused of looting supply trains and diverting the stolen goods to the French black market will go on trial tomorrow before a general court martial.

Already 15 enlisted men have been sentenced to prison terms at hard labor ranging from 25 to 50 years in four sessions of the court last week. It will take several weeks to try the remaining 167 enlisted men and two officers.

The severity of the sentences meted out by the general court martial has jolted the French public and the military governor of Paris has underlined the seriousness of the situation by warning French nationals that civilians dealing in pilfered American army supplies will be punished under French military law.

GUNS PUNCTUATE DOXOLOGY AS GIs ATTEND SERVICE

Unshaven Armed Men Pack Aachen Church.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AACHEN, Germany, Jan. 14.—The muzzle of a carbine strapped to a kneeling G. I.'s back almost poked me in the eye as he arose from prayer at the army church service in this shell shocked German city this morning.

Grimy enlisted men, grizzly bearded, hair not even combed, direct from their foxholes, packed the improvised chapel, formerly the Nazi courthouse, shoulder to shoulder with colonels, majors, and captains, all carrying weapons. An unmarred photograph of Hitler—turned upside down—was the only reminder of the former occupants.

The Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack, and the Dutch flag hung from the makeshift altar over two candles, flickering in the draft from shattered window panes, and from outside came the incessant rumble of ammunition trucks going forward.

Don't Know the Creed.

G. I.s and officers sang the stately words of the doxology wholeheartedly as field batteries near-by punched punctuation to the music.

It seemed evident most of the worshipers were not regular churchgoers, as they did not know the words of the Apostles' Creed, but read them from pamphlets carrying the order of service which were distributed at the door. But all knew the Lord's Prayer. Every one knew, too, the impropriety of applause when a quintet of Negro soldiers sang the spiritual, "Down by the River."

"Not Ready for Peace."

"Praise Him above, ye heavenly host"—the answering C-r-r-r-ump! of enemy shells bursting near-by accentuated the cadence of the hymn as the battle dressed congregation stowed clanking helmets, gas masks, rifles, and side arms to listen attentively to a sermon on the first miracle, when Jesus turned the water into wine.

Capt. Theodore Bornhoeft, tank destroyer captain, formerly minister of a Lutheran church in Schenectady and son of the Rev. Paul Bornhoeft of Cedar Rapids, Ia., acting chaplain, explained God had not ended the war yet—perhaps because we are not ready to make a just, lasting peace.

No collection plate was passed, and after the benediction the soldiers rattled back to battle.

MARCH OF DIMES CAMPAIGN OPENS TO FIGHT POLIO

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, today opened officially the 1945 March of Dimes campaign, saying that one of the greatest battles on the home front was the fight against disease.

In a broadcast address O'Connor said last year's epidemic of poliomyelitis—the second worst in the nation's history—claimed 19,000 victims.

This year, he said, the foundation would expand its program and undertake these projects:

Preparation of a technical force to combat the disease; support of training programs in treatment methods; scholarships for doctors, nurses, and physio-therapists; support of institutions including treatment of infantile paralysis in their curricula, and research by some of the best scientists.

Nazi Radio Says Liner Bearing Yanks Is Sunk

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP).—The German radio speculated today that the Leopoldville, former Belgian passenger liner, had been sunk between England and France while in use as an allied troop transport. Berlin said two lifeboats bearing the liner's name had been washed ashore in the Channel Islands and that one of the boats yielded military equipment "establishing that troops of the 262d United States infantry regiment had been shipwrecked." There was no allied report of the sinking.

WAIST GUNNER FINDS M. P.s CAN BE BENEFACTORS

They Help in Case of Parachuting.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Jan. 14.—Staff Sgt. Roger Bates may lose caste in the air force for what he said today, but it won't change his sentiments—he is very fond of the infantry, and particularly of military policemen.

Bates, 19, of Whitman, Mass., was a waist gunner on one of the Flying Fortresses which had the mission of bombing a Rhine bridge. German ack-ack knocked out one of the Fort's engines before the target was reached, wounded the navigator, and ripped apart the oxygen system. Above the bridge another engine was disabled, but the bombs were dropped.

"I couldn't see the results," Bates said. "In fact, I couldn't even see the weather because the flak was so thick."

Makes His First Jump.

A third engine was wrecked in turning for home, but the Fortress continued on its last engine. Then, with the right wing on fire, it was decided to abandon ship. The navigator's wounds were bandaged, and all 10 of the crew decided to parachute. Bates, making his first jump, was the third to get out. He doesn't know whether the remaining seven jumped or changed their minds and tried to get the ship home.

Because of the lack of oxygen and a temperature of 50 degrees below zero, Bates delayed opening his parachute until he was 12,000 feet above the ground. He was over enemy territory, but the strong wind blew him 15 miles, behind the American lines. He lit in a tall pine tree in a forest and was suspended 30 feet from the earth.

Hangs Head Downward.

Bates worked for almost an hour to effect his release, then lost control and hung head downward. Half an hour later he worked his foot free and fell to the ground. He was unconscious for some time. When he came to, he heard shouts and shots, and thinking he was surrounded by Germans, he crept into a cave.

The shots came from the front lines and the shouts from eight M. P.s who had seen Bates' descent and at first thought he might be an enemy parachutist. They finally decided he was a friendly airman, and they followed his tracks to the cave.

"It was news to me to hear guys saying they were Americans and to come out," Bates related. "I never thought I'd be so happy at meeting M. P.s."

The M. P. detachment was led by Corp Fletcher King of Walland, Tenn., and others in it included Corporals Willis Wilson of Terre Haute, Ind., and Leon Philip of Lorain, O. The detachment was one which in 1942 patroled the bomber base in England where Bates is now stationed.

The M. P.s were so cognizant of the air forces' standard operating procedure after a mission that they gave Bates two ounces—and more—of the bottled McCoy.

CAN'T REBUILD WORLD BY TURNING TO PAST, POPE TELLS NOBILITY

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 14 (AP).—Pope Pius XII., addressing Roman nobility who presented New Year's greetings to the pontiff in a traditional ceremony, said today the reconstruction of the world cannot be attained with "a return to the past."

"The world has continued to move toward progress, or the illusion of progress, and to turn back would be a sterile enterprise," the pope said.

Declaring that nothing is more contrary to the Christian spirit than a caste spirit, the pontiff said nobility's mission was to practice charitable love.

Soldier Slain in Dance Disturbance at USO

Fort Dix, N. J., Jan. 14 [Special].—One Negro soldier was killed and three others injured when Negro military police attempted to quell a disturbance in a Negro USO club here Friday night, post headquarters revealed today. An announcement said that during a dance an altercation took place. Negro M. P.s were called and in restoring order shots were fired. Pvt. Clayton Hartley, East Detroit, Mich., was shot in the head and died in Tilton General hospital.

FLIES A WRECK FOR SAKE OF PAL WHO BAILED OUT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14 (AP).—An air forces officer who, critically injured, stuck to the controls of his doomed bomber because he thought a wounded crewman was aboard, has been awarded the congressional medal of honor posthumously.

The war department today said the man honored was Lt. Col. Leon R. Vance, 29. He was lost in an army evacuation plane crash between Iceland and New Foundland last July. The medal will be presented later to his widow, Mrs. Georgette Drury Vance, Garden City, N. Y., now visiting her husband's parents at Enid, Okla.

Vance was command pilot of a heavy bomber on a mission to Wimeraux, France, on the day before D-day.

1 Killed; 3 Engines Quit.

His plane was hit heavily by flak, the pilot killed and several members of the crew injured. With three engines out, the bomber headed back for the coast of England after making a run over the target.

A fragment had cut into Vance's leg so deeply that the leg hung only by tendons. As the ship approached England it went into a stall. Vance dragged himself up beside the co-pilot and took over control, cutting off the remaining engine and nosing it down into a glide.

Bomb Fails to Drop.

With the coast in sight, he ordered those aboard the plane to bail out and prepared to follow them. He then heard over the plane's intercom system a message that seemed to indicate one crewman still remained aboard, prevented from jumping because of injury.

Unable to climb back into the pilot's seat because of his severed leg, Vance handled the controls while stretched out on the floor. A 500 pound bomb which had failed to clear the bomb bay added to the hazard.

Vance succeeded in setting the big bomber down into the water. An explosion then blew him clear of the sinking ship. He inflated his life belt and was picked up 50 minutes later. Search for the lone crew member thought to have been aboard disclosed no one.

'FIELD OF DEAD,' MASSACRE SITE, STIRS G. I. WRATH

Yanks Learn Meaning of Hate for Nazis.

BY HAL BOYLE.

FIVE POINTS, Belgium, Jan. 14 (AP).—German shells are falling now in "the field of the dead," and doughboys crouching in wintry foxholes are cursing the enemy panzer troops who murdered the American soldiers lying frozen in the snow only a few yards away.

It was at Five Points—a juncture of five roads three miles southeast of Malmedy—that reconnaissance elements of the first SS. Adolf Hitler division on Dec. 17 committed the greatest massacre on the western front.

More than 30 of 150 men they lined up in the fields and mowed down with machine guns and pistols were dug out of the covering snow yesterday and this morning.

Then the army's inspector general and burial squads were driven from the scene by masses of artillery shells tearing vivid black patches in the expanse so white it causes the eye to ache.

Infantry Moves Up.

Now long columns of infantry are slogging forward in an attack under the brilliant winter sun, and steam rises from the thawing bodies of the group of American military police, medics, and artillery observers whom the Germans murdered and left unburied.

One dead man lies in a rigid posture of agony with his outstretched hand reaching almost to the entrance of the foxhole dug by Pvt. Herschel Nolen, 32, Durant, Okla., a combat infantryman.

"There are others around here still lying under the snow," said Nolen, who escaped death himself only a few hours ago when a shell hit his foxhole and seriously wounded his buddy. He waved his hand around at the field of silent dead, and said:

"If that is the way they want to fight—then that's all right with us. But let's us fight that way, too."

"Home Front Should See."

"If the people back home could see this, maybe they would stop their bickering," said Pvt. Glenn L. Hubbard, groceryman from Hannibal, Mo.

If the "folks back home" could be here, this is what they would see:

Along the road beside the house the wreckage of more than a dozen American vehicles—including ambulances, jeeps, and trucks—shot up by the German armored column last month.

And 25 yards on the other side of the ruined farmhouse they would see what was left of the American soldiers who manned those vehicles—soldiers who were first stripped of their weapons, watches, and money, and then lined up and murdered.

Snow still hides many contorted bodies. Others lie face down or face up, but most of them have their hands upraised where death caught them in an attitude of surprise.

The weeks beneath the snow have given some faces a set expression of eternity, but some lie with the mouth half opened as if in protest.

One soldier clutches his abdomen. The back of another soldier's head is blown off. One medic with a bullet hole thru his Red Cross armlet lies starkly straight. Birds or small animals have eaten out his eyes.

A number of soldiers lie huddled together as if for warmth. The most lifelike is one young red-faced boy who lies on his back with a gloved hand raised childlike to his eye, as if to ward off a bullet or wipe away a tear.

Doughboys Show Hate.

The barrage lifts and down the road from embattled Thirimont come 15 young German paratroop prisoners marching with upraised hands.

They are blond and expressionless as snowmen—neither sad nor glad, mad nor sorry.

"Most of them are only about 17 years old," said Pvt. Alex R. Bub, Milwaukee, Wis., who is guarding them.

Hate shows in the eyes of other doughboys as these 15 enemy soldiers march back to the safety, good food, and warmth available behind the front.

"They didn't take our men in this field back to any warm chow," says Pvt. Nolen.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A German broadcast, charging Americans with violating international law, declared last night that a company of American troops in German uniforms and equipped with German weapons was encountered Friday night in the Belgian bulge.

In the early days of their counter-offensive, the Germans used these tactics which they now were attributing to the Americans. A number of Germans caught behind American lines in U. S. uniforms were shot, as provided by international law.

The Berlin broadcast said: "An American assault in the strength of one company, dressed in German uniforms and equipped with German weapons, entered the German main fighting line at Borzee east of Laroche in the night from Friday to Saturday, it was stated by authoritative German quarters. They were recognized by the Germans, however, and driven back. Thirty Americans were killed. German quarters draw special attention to violation of international law in this instance."

2 BAR BURGLARS FAIL TO GET OUT OF A TIGHT SPOT

In their cell at the Hudson av. police station yesterday, General Campbell, 24, of 1154 N. La Salle st., and John Fugate, 33, of 161 Division st., philosophized that the trouble with trying to burglarize a tavern was the danger of mixing business with pleasure.

Fugate and Campbell, whose first name is not a military title, had hit upon what they considered an ingenious scheme to loot the Cellar tavern at 1247 N. Clark st. Feigning drunkeness, they concealed themselves in a dark corner and were unobserved when the tavern was locked up early yesterday morning.

Take $65 from Register.

Then they went to work. They extracted $65 from the cash register and a handful of silver from a tin can behind some bottles on the back bar.

"There should be more money than this," Campbell complained. "I've spent more in here myself on a Saturday night."

But searching proved to be a dry business and Campbell and Fugate began sampling the choicer brands of whisky. Too, the interior of the tavern in the early morning hour was chilly and they figured that a little alcohol in their radiators might prevent a freezeup.

Before long the search for more money was forgotten and the pair concentrated on drinking. But when they decided to leave the tavern and go home they found themselves locked in.

"The Can't Do It to Us."

"They can't do this to us," asserted Campbell, picking up a bottle of whisky and smashing it against the back bar mirror. Campbell's pique was shared by Fugate. Together the two did a systematic job of wrecking the saloon. Mirrors, bottles, booths, and bar seats were reduced to debris.

The racket awakened Alex Martin, 44, a waiter, who lives above the tavern. He called police and told them that he couldn't sleep.

Met by Shower of Bottles.

Carr, peering thru the broken door, saw a movement behind the bar and fired four shots with his revolver. His fire was answered with a shower of beer and whisky bottles, several of which bounced off him.

The three policemen rushed single file thru the hole in the door, and Campbell, observing that he was outnumbered, surrendered.

Fugate was arrested a half block away. He and Campbell were taken to the police station, where Al Kaden, part owner of the tavern, unhappily estimated the damage at $1,000, plus $250 worth of smashed whisky.

'SELECTIVE SERVICE TO HELP VET GET JOB BACK'—ARMSTRONG

Selective service is going to be just as much concerned about restoring a service veteran to his old job—and without red tape—as it was in putting him in the army, Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois state director, said last night in a broadcast address. He was the guest speaker on the war man power commission's radio show, "Jobs for G. I. Joe."

He stressed that every veteran will be entitled to his same position with the same seniority and wages. "In Illinois," he continued, "we have not yet been required to resort to legal action to get any discharged soldier back on his job." He explained that where it becomes necessary to compel an employer to rehire a veteran, "the law provides for channeling of his case thru the United States attorney and the federal court at no expense to the veteran."

"Selective service," he said, "is ready and willing to give every veteran assistance and coöperation. Once a man has completed his service with the armed forces, neither race, creed, nor color shall interfere with his reëmployment and employment rights under the law."

BRITISH MISRULE CALLED MOTIVE IN MOYNE CASE

Two Jewish Assassins Pictured as Patriots.

CAIRO, Jan. 14 (AP).—An Egyptian lawyer defending two Jews being tried for the assassination of W. E. Guinness [Lord Moyne] declared today their motive in killing the British minister was to strike at alleged British maladministration of Palestine.

The defendants, he argued, should be regarded as patriots who took the diplomat's life in an effort to further the cause of Jewish nationalism.

"These two Jewish boys," counsel told the Egyptian court, "learned violence from history itself."

The defendants—Eliahou Hakim and Eliahou Bet Souri—have confessed the assassination of Moyne and the killing of his chauffeur in an attack in front of the British official's Cairo residence.

Prosecution Asks Death.

Yesterday the prosecution demanded the death penalty and urged that the tribunal show no feeling of pity for the defendants either on the ground of their youth or their political motives.

Defending the youths is Tewfik Doss Pasha, a former cabinet minister and a member of the commission which drafted the Egyptian constitution.

For more than three hours today he held the overflowing courtroom in almost complete silence as he traced Jewish efforts to obtain a national home in Palestine with an independent government. Both defendants, he reminded the court, were Palestine-born and regarded Palestine as their home.

Recalls Jewish Troubles.

The attorney recalled Jewish disappointments resulting from conflicts over Palestine and pointed out that the two defendants were highly educated and thoroly familiar with the story.

"I appeal to the bench," he said, "to put itself in the position of these wretched people [Jews]. They regarded Britain as the only country able to help them live in Palestine. They rushed to Palestine and began establishing colonies. Then began the struggle with the Arabs."

He asked the court to believe that as a result Hakim and Bet Souri come to regard Britain as responsible for this struggle and the attendant bloodshed.

GREEK RIGHTISTS HAIL BRITAIN AND KING IN PARADE

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 14.—Athens' famous Constitution square, where hungry, ragged men, women, and children of the EAM leftist national liberation front died under the blazing guns of Greek police six weeks ago to the hour, was the scene of a vastly different demonstration this morning.

This was a victory dance of the Greek rightist factions. More than 50,000 citizens of Athens and Piraeus, the port city, were jammed there and showed their gratitude to the British army for freeing Attica from the leftists' hold in five weeks of bitter fighting.

It was interesting to note that the marchers had unearthed some strange bedfellows for today's demonstration. Greeks of all rightist political shades tramped along under banners proclaiming their identity.

Fascists Show Strength.

The fascistic group, which under German occupation collaborated with the Nazis in an attempt to stamp out the German hating left wing element, was there in strength. Followers of Gen. Stylianos Gonatas were there shouting paeans for this Greek officer who had much to do with forming the infamous Greek security battalions, armed and trained by the Germans to fight leftist forces in Attica and which are responsible for the deaths of thousands of Greeks unwise enough to resist the occupation forces.

It was also noticeable that there were far fewer American flags and nowhere near as many shouts for President Roosevelt as in the demonstrations before the revolution. Today's marchers—most of them well dressed, carried huge Union Jacks and Greek flags. They called the praises of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, the new premier, and Prime Minister Churchill.

Pictures of rawboned King George II. of Greece also were much in evidence. Shouts of "Long live Plastiras, long live Churchill, we want King George," filled the square.

A British embassy spokesman and public relations officers took great pains to explain to correspondents that today's spectacle was entirely a Greek demonstration, staged without aid or inspiration from the British. So we would not be inconvenienced because of inability to understand the language, British public relations had translated copies of the principal talks given by Greek speakers ready beforehand.

[The Associated Press reported fighting was still going on at scattered points on Attica peninsula. One British column was ambushed by left wing ELAS. There were other engagements along the Corinth canal.]

PORTUGUESE PAPER HITS 'NO. AMERICAN LITERATURE' IN BRAZIL

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 14 [Reuters].—A further increase in the amount of North American literature translated into Portuguese and distributed in Brazil would constitute an offense to the sovereign right of that country, the official Lisbon Diario da Manha wrote editorially today.

The paper also said that the Portuguese empire already was threatened by the "black wings of ambition of international society in which undertakings and treaties are of no value." It added that Portugal must more than ever throw herself into the improvement of her overseas trritories, adding:

"The effective dominion of Portugal beyond the seas cannot be limited to simple faith in the rights of possession. To proclaim to the four winds the unity of Portugal's empire is a preëminent necessity."

EXPERT BRANDS BRITISH HOUSING AS INTOLERABLE

BY JAMES SLOAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Most Englishmen live in conditions which, according to any scientific definition of social right, are far below tolerable standards, Edward Carter, a housing expert, told the British association conference today.

Asking what other social science has to carry such a burden of antiquity, he said: "The great deadweight of 8,000,000 houses are pre-1914 houses, all are at least 30 years old, and it has been calculated that 4,500,000 are over 80 years old, more than a million over 180 years old, and 36,000 over 250 years old.

"The 4,000,000 houses built between the wars show practically no evidence of scientific intelligence in their construction materials, equipment, building, processes of organization, or site planning," he added.

NAVY MEN FLY 7 SEAS, BUT NEVER LEAVE DRY LAND

Patuxent, Md., Jan. 14 (AP).—An enormous new device by which an entire flying boat crew is given on the ground experience approximating flight was disclosed today in a demonstration by the navy at its testing base here.

The installation—it is too extensive to be called a machine—calls for a room large enough to house the nose of an airplane.

A crew in training does everything to the finest detail that it does in an actual takeoff, flight, and landing. The instructor can cause icing conditions, uneven wing loading, rough air, engine failure, fuel or oil line failure, and dozens of other problems. Crews are judged by their alertness to the indication of trouble, and their judgment in meeting the problem.

IOWA WOMAN DIES IN CRASH.

Manchester, Ia., Jan. 14 [Special].—Mrs. Mary Curtis, 44, wife of J. E. Curtis of Masonville was killed, and her son, Harold, 13, and daughter, Rosemary, 10, were injured last night when the Curtis automobile collided with a truck.

Kin of Gen. Pershing Wins Soldier's Medal as Hero

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, FRANCE, Jan. 13 (AP).—Pvt. William B. Pershing, Los Angeles, Cal., a third cousin of Gen. John J. Pershing, American commander in World War I., has been awarded the soldier's medal for heroism. Pershing, an engineering clerk with a night fighter outfit, was awarded the medal for saving a British soldier from drowning in Italy.

NAZIS GET MORE TROOPS AND BIG GUNS IN ITALY

ROME, Jan. 14 (AP). — German forces blocking the allies in northern Italy have been strongly reenforced and today are using the heaviest artillery encountered since allied troops cracked the Hitler line last May.

With the Apennines covered with deep snowdrifts, patrolling by both sides has been held to a minimum during the last two days, an allied bulletin said. Southeast of Bologna, one combat party pushed to Furma, 8 miles below Imola, but ran into heavy enemy artillery fire. Northeast of Furma, a patrol probed the slopes of Ven del Gesso but was forced to curtail activities because of the weather.

A PLAN FOR EUROPEAN PEACE.

What amuses almost as much as it irritates is the suggestion that we can have a post-war alliance of the big powers to prevent future wars in Europe when we cannot even make the present alliance effective to wage the present war.

It is undeniable that the war has been prolonged by failure to coördinate attacks against the heart of Germany. Yet in recent months our allies, while inactive in this respect, have had the military resources for political adventures elsewhere.

The Russians stood still on the Polish front for eight months, but they were not wanting in military resources for extensive operations in the areas that Stalin has marked out as his post-war sphere of influence. Probably the Germans would not have dared to undertake their counter-offensive on the western front except for this lull in the east, which only now has been broken. British forces in France were quiescent from Arnhem until their 2d army joined the battle of the break-thru, but Britain found military resources for service in Greece.

How any one can stand up in the senate with a straight face and suggest that these two powers join us in an altruistic alliance to prevent war staggers the imagination. Yet Sen. Vandenberg did so, and in some quarters his proposal has been accepted as worthy of consideration. The fact that it was made in good will does not alter the fact that it is ludicrous.

There is a plan that would go much farther toward assuring peace to Europe. We have advanced it before. In bringing it up again we recognize that it is not likely to prevail against the efforts to establish Russian and British spheres of influence, but that does not mean that it would not work if Russia and Britain would join the United States in promoting it.

Let the freed countries, instead of fussing about with regencies, or regimes imposed by the military force of the liberators, adopt virtually in toto the Constitution of the United States. This is the only Republic that has endured, and today it is actually the only free government to be found anywhere, Switzerland and Sweden possibly excepted. We do not use the totally deceptive word "democracy."

That there would be objections to genuine republican constitutions in Europe is apparent, but the objections would come less from the peoples concerned than from the two powers which are attempting to impose other forms of rule upon them. Mr. Churchill is an acknowledged proponent of monarchy and the caste system that goes with it. Stalin is an acknowledged proponent of totalitarianism, and the slavery that is implicit in it.

There would be no place in republics for the ruling parasites that have abused and exploited European peoples. There would be no place for communism under our Bill of Rights, which protects both the rights of men and the right to property, which means the right of every man to his earnings.

It would be argued that the people of Europe are not "prepared" for our kind of free government. That cannot be proved, for they never have tried it. Every republican constitution that has ever been adopted in Europe has contained the seeds of its own destruction in provisions for suspending that constitution in so-called emergencies. Europeans have never had enough faith in their own stability and political unity to see, as Americans have known for generations, that there are enough powers within the Constitution to prevent its destruction.

There are enough citizens in all of the European countries—France, perhaps, is an exception—who have lived in America, or are familiar with our political institutions, to put our form of government into operation. Most certainly, any such republics would have stormy beginnings. So will every other European government of the next decade, whether it is royalist or communist.

A people free to govern themselves will develop the capacity for self-government, and that is the only way that it can be developed. In that, rather than in an alliance with Russia and Britain committing us to send American troops anywhere in the world, lies the real hope of peace.

POLITICAL PROSPECTS.

There are to be six Democrats and three Republicans on the new standing committee of the house which is to carry on the Dies inquiry into un-American activities. Of the six Democrats tentatively selected, four voted against the establishment of the committee and three of the four are claimed by the PAC as its men. Contrary to congressional custom, the chairmanship of the committee has not been given to the man who sponsored it, Rep. Rankin, nor even to a man known to be in agreement with the sponsor on the purposes which the committee is to serve. The representative slated for the chairmanship is Mr. Hart of New Jersey, who owes his position in politics to Boss Hague.

All of which serves once again to highlight the deplorable situation into which both major parties in this country have fallen. The Democratic party has become the party of communism and corruption with the inheritors of the Jefferson-Jackson-Cleveland tradition possessed of less and less influence.

Unfortunately, the Republicans have not profited from the degradation of their opponents. The reason is the obvious one that in the last two national Republican conventions the Republicans demonstrated that they can be delivered to the Democrats by the money-bags of Wall street.

There is no hope of reform within the Democratic ranks and unless the Republicans can rid themselves of the blight that has all but ruined their prospect the formation of a third party is inevitable. Whether it is called the Patriot party, the American party, or something else is of small consequence. It will be the party to which Americans, whether of the east, the south, or the west, can rally to save their Republic and its institutions of freedom.

OBSOLETE TANKS.

Now that Mr. Roosevelt has disclosed that we have developed a new tank with a gun more powerful than any now mounted on vehicles, front line correspondents are being permitted to say why the tank was developed. A reference in John Thompson's story to "outmoded Shermans" is sufficient to make that clear. Other reports have compared the German 68 ton Mark VI. Royal Tiger tank, with very heavy frontal armor and mounting a high velocity 88 millimeter gun, to the 30 ton Sherman, with its 75 millimeter gun, and the comparisons are not favorable to the Sherman. The German 45 ton Panther, with an exceptionally long 75 millimeter high velocity gun, is also rated high.

The reason, then, that new American tanks have been developed—Mr. Roosevelt doesn't say that they are in combat or even in production—is that we have been fighting the Nazis with obsolete equipment. This was another one of those facts which the commander in chief did not feel free to divulge during the fourth term campaign, altho both the Tiger and Panther had made their appearance long before election.

The President has a great advantage in concealing shortcomings, for all the facts are at his disposal, and censorship and a policy of secrecy contrive to keep them his personal property. Not until deficiencies are disclosed on the field of battle does the public hear about such matters, and by then Mr. Roosevelt is able to advance to the microphone and assert that he has had something done about it, so there is no reason to worry. Altogether, it works out very nicely for him, altho perhaps not to the liking of our tank crews and infantrymen.

CHICAGO'S CONTRIBUTION.

Chicago's war record is second to none. Neglected by the army and navy in the early distribution of contracts, Chicago employers and workmen took up the job when the communities favored earlier had become swamped. The results of getting things done here so impressed the supply agencies that they became Chicago enthusiasts, and allotted to this city more money for industrial facilities than was assigned to any other city.

An important factor in Chicago's great record in turning out the things needed to fight the enemy is that we haven't had the bad strike situations reported from many other cities. Our employers get along with their help better than in the other munitions producing centers. Chicago workers have grievances, but they have learned to have them adjusted as a rule without laying down their tools and forcing production to stop. We rank second in population but 15th in time lost in strikes. The total amount of man power wasted here in strikes is about the same as that in Woonsocket and Wilkes-Barre.

Chicago's war bond record is what might be expected from a community which takes its responsibilities to its men at the front seriously in other respects. Chicago was the first large metropolitan community to oversubscribe its quota of "E" war bonds in one of the big drives. That was done in the 5th drive. In the 6th drive, just concluded, ably directed by Francis M. Knight, Chicago did it again. It is gratifying to find that several other cities inspired, perhaps, by what Chicago did in the 5th drive, succeeded in going over the top for the first time.

The Illinois war bond record has been equally impressive. A study by Renslow P. Sherer, who gave freely of his time as Illinois war finance chairman, shows that more than 4½ billion dollars' worth of government securities were sold in this state in 1944. In the same period federal taxes collected in the state exceeded 3½ billion dollars. Thus Illinois' contribution to the war effort amounted to more than 8 billion dollars in 1944.

Mr. Sherer's study points out the importance of the concentrated effort at selling during the war drives. Ninety-three per cent of the government securities were sold during the campaign, and only 7 per cent between the campaigns.

Corporations bought two-thirds and individuals one-third of the total. Of 1½ billion dollars' worth sold to individuals in Illinois a little more than 40 per cent were "E" bonds. Not only have corporations supplied the greater part of the war loan money, but their purchases are increasing, while individual purchases have shown no tendency to expand. As the national income is persistently rising, this is something less than satisfactory. The effort in 1945 will be wisely directed toward increasing the sale of bonds to individuals, for if there is a danger of inflation, it lies in the possession by the people of excessive amounts of spending power at a time when the supply of goods cannot expand.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

[Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.]

Because the United States has refused to include in lend-lease aid to Russia heavy machine tools, presses, and other industrial equipment which would be more useful to the soviet union's post-war program than to her war effort, the Russians are said to have placed orders with the General Electric and Norfolk Shipbuilding companies for heavy power plant equipment to be used in rebuilding the Dnieperstroy dam.

Granted that some pooling of allied resources may be desirable in post-war reconstruction just as it is essential in the war time effort, the fact that Russia placed orders to buy equipment in this country as soon as she learned that it wouldn't be given to her indicates that a return to business principles as soon as possible may speed rather than delay the economic rehabilitation of a war-torn world.

With a war debt rising toward the 300 billion mark, our government has nothing to give away. It can still raise thru taxation and borrowing enough money to finance its war effort, which includes supplying war materials to our allies, but any lend-lease gifts piled on top of that come not from any excess of what we have but would have to be borrowed from the future productivity of our people.

THE MERRY MAESTRO.

A flicker of news out of Vienna, Europe's most famous ghost town: Franz Lehar has been placed under "house arrest," perhaps because he has said that the jig seems to be up, since the Russians are in Budapest. He is, of course, Vienna's modern "waltz king," now an old man who hasn't tossed off an operetta for 20 years. But the world still remembers his "Merry Widow," and even revives it today. Lehar may be in the jug at home, but his masterpiece will be sung by first class voices in the Civic Opera house tonight.

* * *

The "Merry Widow" vogue was at its crest on the American stage thru the season of 1907-'08, when New York and Chicago had contemporaneous productions. Every theatrical archivist knows that the principals were Ethel Jackson and Donald Brian in New York, Lina Abarbanell and George Damerel in Chicago, but old playgoers with foggy memories frequently ask who was who and where. Abarbanell was better than Jackson, and Brian was better than Damerel, but no matter who sang the leading roles, Lehar's music was always the important matter.

* * *

The Chicago run of "The Merry Widow" lifted the blight of tragic memories from the Iroquois theater, renamed the Colonial. During four years the shadow of the fire disaster kept people away from that haunted portal on Randolph st., but at last Lehar's Viennese gayety exorcised the ghosts. This was, indeed, a triumph for the tradition of Alt Wien, which contributed a unique element to global gayety until the World wars began.

* * *

Lehar's "Count of Luxemburg" [1909] was given a higher musical rating by the highbrows than "The Merry Widow," but it never caused a new style in women's hats. Its waltz was a more stately composition, and was danced up and down a broad flight of palace stairs. . . . So, Franz, you are still alive, but Schlaraffenland [one of his other titles] is no more. O quae mutatio rerum!

ADVICE TO MUSICAL LADIES.

Now singing is a lonesome task
Unless you sing duets.
A bored smile is the sole applause
A solo ever gets.
For men prefer themselves to sing,
And don't you ever doubt it.
And all the suffrage in the world
Can't do a thing about it.
So if you crave to be adored,
You'll have to learn to do
Accompaniments, and cultivate
A rapt expression, too.
Or, if your voice cannot be stilled
Then sing in minor key.
A man will not object to your Supporting harmony.
Men much prefer to occupy
The center stage, my pet.
They want to sing the solos . . .
And what they want, they get!

MIDDLE AGE MEDITATION.

A little more careful of what I say,
A little less certain of what I know,
And that what is hearsay is always so.
Is bringing the world to a dreadful end;
Declining to think that we've gone to hell,
And yet with a feeling that all's not well;
Assuming the attitude of a sage
A little less brown and a wee more gray,
(A little less, too, of both brown and gray),
Selecting my food with a bit more care,
Reluctant to move from my easy chair.
And so I am forced (without being told)

When Dollars Fell from Heaven.

One of the early landmarks in Evanston was the Snyder farmhouse or inn, on Chicago av. south of Dempster st. Abraham Snyder sold his farm to Northwestern university. After the sale the house was rented to various tenants, including one S. C. Wood. Tenant Wood was one day repairing the ceiling when he was greeted by a shower of dollars, escaping from a cache between the ceiling and the floor above. Wood had visions of paying rent several months in advance, but the coins proved to be Mexican lead dollars, evidently stored by counterfeiters when they were guests of the Snyder inn.

[Advice and assistance on draft and military questions and problems of dependents of service men and veterans are offered here or by mail if a stamped envelope is sent. Personal assistance is given to veterans by appointment.]

N. A. H. writes: "At the conclusion of their service, millions of service men will return to civilian life with a desire to go into business for themselves. Many haven't the slightest idea of what makes a business tick, and it is obvious they will be the prey of unscrupulous sharpers, promoters, racketeers, and also of devoted but unwise relatives and friends. A booklet of sound advice on going into business should be made available to these men."

The army, thru the coöperation of the department of commerce, division of small business, has prepared a series of 19 books dealing in a comprehensive way with the problem of returning service men going into business for themselves. The series covers everything from apparel shops to variety and general merchandise stores. These books, at least for the present, will be made available only to service personnel thru the Armed Forces Institute, Madison, Wis. There are 26 field offices of the department of commerce, located in principal cities thruout the country, from which service men and veterans may obtain information on businesses, old and new, which stand some chance of success in the many communities covered by publications, special reports, and surveys of these local offices.

HELP FOR VICTIMS OF CIRRHOSIS.

WE have a right to express our gratitude to those who are studying nutrition intensively. Because of their researches, we may understand many diseases, which hitherto have proved puzzling.

In this connection, we now know that victims of portal cirrhosis of the liver may be assisted by diet. Oft-times this condition arises as the result of too much alcohol which has been imbibed [over a long period of time] unaccompanied by food. As we realize, no vital structure can perform adequately unless it receives a sufficient quantity of carbohydrates, proteins, and vitamins.

We have learned also that the absence of fat from the repasts is helpful in this disorder, and the recent suggestion that the substance known as "choline" be employed is explained on the ground that it removes fat from the liver. With the patient fed on protein, carbohydrates, vitamin B, and choline, the organ is not only protected but much of its function may be regained. We cannot hope for the disappearance of the fibrous tissue which perhaps has replaced liver cells. On the other hand, the progress of degeneration may be arrested, fatty changes may decrease, and the apparatus itself may approach a natural size.

A 48 year old woman was admitted to a hospital suffering from severe jaundice and persistent bleeding from the gums. She presented the typical picture of cirrhosis, with various complications. The abdomen was distended [edema], while the outer wall was streaked with numerous tortuous and dilated veins. As we would anticipate, the liver was found to be grossly enlarged. Under good dietary management, she made a remarkable comeback. The collection of fluid vanished.

Unfortunately, she was a confirmed alcoholic and, after going home, she again resorted to her favorite pastime. Furthermore, she omitted her choline and disregarded the prescribed meals. As we would expect, her troubles returned in full force.

With a 62 year man, it was necessary to tap the abdomen to relieve the accumulated lake of water. As soon as choline and a correct feeding plan began to take effect, no further drainage was demanded. This patient has continued to improve and is now working full time. What happened is this: The omission of all fat from the menus led to the absorption of this material from other depots in the body, including the liver. The high protein-carbohydrate regime acted as a stone wall against the advance of deterioration.

But we cannot forget the important rôle of vitamin B. All the fractions [B complex] are utilized for a week or two. Thereafter brewer's yeast may be substituted. It should be recalled that we are dealing with a malady which, in many instances, is due to toxins [alcohol, etc.] which have not been properly safeguarded with balanced edibles.

Of course, we cannot hope for complete normalcy if a substantial portion of our largest digestive gland has been disabled. We need not expect daylight to filter thru window glass that has been painted black. But we can preserve the remaining healthy secreting cells.

VIRUS INFECTION.

A. D. writes: What is the cause of the epidemic of nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea that seems to be going around?

REPLY.

A relatively mild infection which is commonly [but erroneously] termed "intestinal flu." The episode passes, as a rule, within two or three days. Altho the source may lie within the respiratory passages, not infrequently, water, milk, or some other edible is at fault. It is thought to be of virus origin.

ALL INCLUSIVE TERM.

J. D. writes: Is "gastritis" what our grandparents used to call "dyspepsia?"

REPLY.

One and the same. To them, however, dyspepsia included peptic ulcer, obstruction, and all other disturbances of the digestive tract.

EYE DISEASE.

J. G. writes: I have been told I have trachoma. Is this curable?

REPLY.

A PREVIEW OF THINGS TO COME

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Maud and Buffalo at $1.50 an Acre.

Be not misled by those war time pleas to stay-off-the-trains. Race right down and join the fight for reservations. The trains are begging for passengers.

Basis for this contention rests in a Santa Fe railroad timetable that came this way last week. It offers every inducement at its command to lure pilgrims into its cars. "Fare low! Equipment perfect! Officers attentive! The land hunters', gold hunters', and buffalo hunters' road!" the brochure cries. Moreover, it offers to sell you most of the land you will see from the train windows at from $1.50 to $8 an acre, 11 years' credit at 7 per cent interest, and a 20 per cent deduction for cash. It is described as rich bottom land with a clear title derived directly from the United States, and the amount is limited: only 2,500,000 acres, and most of that in Kansas.

For fear the public might think the timetable is a practical joke, illustrations are provided as proof. Beneath each illustration is a fat paragraph of glowing text somewhat in the literary style of Mark Twain.

One illustration shows smoke circling from a roof on the ground. Near-by are an oxcart, a line of drying clothes, and an ogling man and wife. "This habitation," the accompanying text states, "is called a dug-out, and the appellation has a beautiful significance since the inhabitants dug themselves out of some of the eastern states for the western world. This style of building is the only one which combines both a ground floor and a ground roof. The A. T. & S. F. R. R. offers the toiling millions of the east every facility for erecting these comfortable homes, furnishing the land on easy terms, and also selling holes which the emigrant can drive into the ground."

Another shows several prairie dogs squatting on a stretch of prairie. Explanation: "The above beautiful picture represents a prairie dog town of the second class, incorporated by the Kansas legislature. The gentleman who reposes in a perpendicular attitude in the foreground is the mayor. The melancholy expression of his countenance is because he fooled away his money on another route instead of coming west direct by the A. T. & S. F."

A third, directed to beauty lovers, is a sketch of the Garden of the Gods in Colorado. Explanation: "This entrancing scene is called the Garden of the Gods, altho it really is the property of the A. T. & S. F. The garden is most remarkable for its fence, which is built of rock, after designs by nature, and is 2,000 feet high in the lowest place. Tennyson was inspired by this beautiful scene to write his lines, 'Come into the garden, Maud,' which Maud can easily do by purchasing a ticket over the justly celebrated A. T. & S. F."

Two pictures are intended to lure sportsmen. One shows a horseman chasing a herd of deer. The writer disposed of it with: "The chase of the antelope on horseback, without hounds, as represented above, is one of the most exciting and useless performances in the world. This is proved by the fact that ever since the above picture was made the hunter and antelope have maintained the same relative positions." [Editor's note: See "Ode to a Grecian Urn."]

The other shows a man lying behind one buffalo to take aim at another: "This picture represents a style of buffalo hunting invented expressly for the A. T. & S. F. The hunter rides to the bloody field on a tame buffalo, hired for the purpose. On arriving at the location of the herd the tame buffalo, actuated by sordid and mercenary considerations, lies down on his east side, the hunter lies down behind him, and discharges his weapon at the herd. This style of hunting is only practised under the authority of this company."

Now do you see why the westbound trains are crowded? The brochure was printed in February, 1876.

THE GREEK REBEL MINORITY.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—It is reported that now, a week after the Athens area has been cleared of the E. A. M. forces, Premier Gen. Nicholas Plastiras has appealed to the Athenians to end the general strike, declaring that resumption of normal services and work would facilitate the distribution of food and medicine. We have been told by British officials and Greek royalist flunkeys that the resistance movement in Greece is staged by a small minority of less than 10 per cent of the population. It is thought provoking, isn't it, how this strike can continue now that British Tommies with lend-lease guns and tanks have cleared the area of armed rebels. And more so when we see how, for almost two months now, the relief food and medicine [mostly American] has been used as a cruel weapon to entice the shivering, starved people into accepting the government of King George. Poor, brave, stubborn, hungry, freedom-loving, friendless Greeks—what a minority.

WHY WORKERS WON'T SHIFT.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The real cause of this shortage of war workers is due to our near-sighted politicians, who have not the foresight to realize that men above draft age with a lot of seniority in nonessential industries are not going to give up that seniority to chase rainbows and political promises.

If the proper legislation were put thru enabling workers in nonessential industries to have the security of getting their jobs back after the war—the same as is given service men—then, and then only would war plants be able to get an adequate amount of help.

A STAKE AT ISSUE.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—There is one aspect of the controversy between the two Polish governments which apparently has been overlooked. On March 4, 1944, the French Committee of National Liberation agreed to return to the Polish government in exile 88 million dollars worth of gold held by the Bank of France in West Africa. I may be wrong, but I have a suspicion that the desire to handle this tidy amount of cash may be the hidden reason why the Polish committees of Lublin and London are so irreconcilable.

A POLISH BONDHOLDER.

FOOLISH, IF NOT FIRST, ROBIN.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—I have just seen a robin huddled on the window sill of our neighbors' house, trying to warm himself in the sun and getting a meal from the seeds of the vines growing over the sill. We threw him a piece of bread which he and the sparrows quickly ate up.

I'm afraid he may be a foolish robin from last season, and not the first robin of the year.

COURTESY CAMPAIGN.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—I was knocked down, my hose torn and my disposition spoiled by one of our hurrying citizens who was trying to catch his morning "L" train. No apology was offered to soothe my feelings.

Those hurt and injured veterans are going to find it tough competing with our pushing and rushing on "L" trains, street cars and buses.

CROSS-EXAMINING JIMMY.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Mr. Byrnes vs. Montgomery Ward & Co. [and all American business concerns], Mr. Byrnes speaking: "I am the director of the office of war mobilization and reconversion. In my official capacity I am familiar with the machinery established by the congress and the President for the prompt and peaceful settlement of war time labor disputes, etc."

Q.—Mr. Byrnes, according to the United States bureau of labor, because of strikes since Pearl Harbor there have been 25,683,000 working days lost. What have you to say about that great loss to the war effort?

A.—I say, close the race tracks.

C. J. KENNEDY.

A LABOR SURPLUS SINCE 1941.

Mound City, Ill., Jan. 8.—Thanks for publishing the sensible letter of the Coatsburg, Ill., village board member, "Take the War Work to the Workers." My home town, Mound City, the county seat of Pulaski county, has 2,500 population and not a single war industry. Three miles west is the twin village of Mounds, with 2,500 population, and no war industry.

Pulaski county has been shown every month since Dec. 7, 1941, to have had a labor surplus, and yet, no action. I am required to move into an adjoining state and work, 230 miles away from home, while my family remains in our home so my two boys can have decent schools and small town American atmosphere. WAR WORKER.

FROM THE M. T. S. NURSE.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The appreciation of our patients is like a shining light in a dreary sky.

The years do not dull the thrill of relieving suffering, aiding the desperately ill to recovery. That, Mr. Bardsley, is why there are nurses.

Unfortunately we cannot feed our families with it. My quarrel is not with the patients, not with the job—only with the salary. M. T. S. NURSE.

A COMMEMORATIVE MEDAL.

Portage, Wis., Dec. 27.—We note that some congressional sycophants propose a medal for the successful fourth termer on the occasion of his approaching inauguration—at the taxpayers' expense, of course. As the most appropriate model for this trophy, I would suggest a large ring in the nose. And let it be of brass! EDW. P. ANDREWS.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[1] Would you kindly give me information about old age pensions—not social security benefits. [2] Can both husband and wife receive old age assistance if neither has paid social security but both have reached the age of 65? [3] Are they allowed to have a telephone and refrigerator? S. W.

[1] The act (Ill. R. S. Ch. 23, Secs. 410-430) grants old age assistance to citizens 65 years old who have resided in Illinois five years of the preceding nine years, the last year being continuous; who are not supported by public institutions; who have not given away their assets to increase their need; have no children able to support them and have not purchased full care in private institutions. Assistance will not exceed $40 per month. If the applicant has a private income, the pension is scaled down proportionately.

[2] This is possible.

BYRNES' FEUD WITH F.D.R. SETS CAPITAL ABUZZ

Fail to Confer Directly on New Decrees.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—From the stately halls of the Supreme court, thru the corridors of congress, down Pennsylvania av. to the White House and on thru the labyrinth of alphabetical agencies and departments, the major item of gossip during the last week has been that President Roosevelt and War Mobilization Director Byrnes, the man who has given the country a succession of jolts, are not speaking.

James F. Byrnes.

Byrnes has issued a staggering succession of directives banning horse racing, ending conventions, calling for assignment of 4-Fs to war jobs, demanding reductions in heat and light, and promulgating the work or fight order.

These bold strokes were delivered either without consulting the chief executive or thru consultations carried on by intermediaries. Friends of the former senator and Supreme court justice predict he will continue to take the bit in his teeth and issue directives he thinks are needed on man power without risking the check rein of White House vacillation.

Rift Begun at Convention.

The rift between the President and the man widely known as "the assistant President," who has come to be known in the last two weeks as the strong man of the administration, dates back to the Democratic convention in Chicago last July.

Byrnes broke off relations with the President because he felt the latter had broken a promise to make him his fourth term running mate. Others, who felt a similar pledge had been made to them but who did not become angry when they were forgotten, included Vice President Wallace, Senate Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.], and Supreme Court Justice Douglas.

Byrnes has long cherished the ambition to preside over the senate and possibly succeed to the White House. In 1940, when he felt he was a certain choice, he was sidetracked for Wallace. Shortly before the Chicago convention he again let it be known he was in the running and put the matter before the President.

Roosevelt Gives His O. K.

Mr. Roosevelt, always amiable to office seekers and plan proposers, said the Byrnes candidacy was acceptable to him and as an evidence of good faith gave Byrnes a letter of indorsement.

Not until he reached Chicago did Byrnes learn that the convention was being cleared thru Sidney Hillman, CIO leader, who had turned thumbs down on the war mobilization director because of his anti-labor record. At the same time Byrnes was staggered by the discovery that his letter of indorsement was written after Sen. Truman had been selected as the fourth term running mate.

Byrnes returned to Washington determined to submit his resignation. He was persuaded not to do so by Bernard Baruch, capitalist, who aspires to be a White House adviser.

TRACE BULLET FOUND IN SLAIN SENATOR'S CAR

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 14 [Special].—A "long drawn out man hunt" to find the slayer of State Sen. Warren G. Hooper [R., Albion] was predicted by Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler today as the police investigation failed to disclose new evidence. Hooper was shot to death Thursday in his automobile on highway M-99, 10 miles from Jackson.

Sigler said a bullet which passed thru Hooper's head and also thru the right rear door of Hooper's car has been recovered and will be turned over to the state police crime laboratory for examination. Accompanied by Capt. William Hansen of the state police, Sigler visited the slaying scene late today. Police thruout the state are watching for a maroon sedan described by an unnamed witness as having been seen parked near the death car.

Reports current here that authorities in Grand Rapids planned a reopening of the inquest into the death there last Dec. 10 of State Rep. Earl Munshaw, Republican whip of the house in the last legislature, were denied by Prosecutor Mensor R. Holt in Grand Rapids. Munshaw died in his automobile in his garage of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Sigler said an inquest into Hooper's death will be opened at 2 p. m. Friday in the courthouse here.

SOCIAL SECURITY COSTS LIBERTY, J. T. FLYNN SAYS

Also Means Dictator, Author Holds.

Government can provide social security and jobs for all, but only at the cost of liberty, John T. Flynn, economist and author, told the Charles Carroll forum in the Morrison hotel yesterday. The title of his talk was "The Brass Tacks of Abundance."

"It is a simple matter to provide security for 5 millions who are unable to work or cannot find jobs if we have employment for the 50 million other workers," he said. "We merely tax the 50 million and hand it over to support the 5 millions."

But Americans, he said, have come to look to government for "every heart's desire" and only a dictator can control the economic system sufficiently to do that.

"If you will place me at the head of government I can give everyone jobs and social security," he said. "But I shall have to ask you to give me your liberty."

Must Pay for Freedom.

"We must be willing to pay for freedom. We are paying now in millions of men slaughtered and perhaps in the wreck of civilization. Yet we are told that we are not supposed to put up with even a little unemployment; it is too high a price.

"Capitalism is filled with weaknesses and imperfections, but it is the only economic system I know of that makes free men and women. Some men go into business who should not be in business. We have mistakes and failures. But we are free. In the name of freedom, I urge you to give serious thought.

"Let us examine the capitalistic system realistically and decide whether we want it or not. If we do not, let us adopt something else, perhaps communism. But if we do want it, let's permit it to operate according to its own particular genius."

"In Footsteps of Fascism."

Flynn said America is following "unprecisely" in the footsteps of Italy and Germany, where, he said, fascism promised to safeguard capitalism and failed to do so because of broken promises and the attempt to supplement private wages with state allotments.

"It is not alone the fault of our administration," he said, "but also of business and labor who seek control thru associations and unions, and by people yelling for more and more security. There will be no security for any one unless the economic system is strong."

This, he said, is "the age of promises." Those are in power who promise most what the people want."

Sees Lack of Leadership.

The situation has resulted from "tides of opinion, appetite and desire" which have been in motion thruout the world for many years, he said.

"There is no leadership in these movements," he said. "Those who appear to be leaders are clever men who have detected these tides. Italy and Germany produced dictators. We have no dictator and I don't believe we shall have, but we do it by means of one crisis after another, a diabolical system."

"Outstanding" and "exceptional" were frequently heard comments yesterday from the crowd of more than 600 amateur photographers [many of them identified by camera cases slung over the shoulder] who attended the three-hour preview of "History Thru the Camera's Eye," an exhibit of color photographs, taken by THE TRIBUNE'S color studio staff, to be shown today thru March 14 at the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. and North av.

Attendants said that several of the "scoop" photographs and picture "firsts" attracted wide attention, including one of the British king and queen snapped at a garden party in Washington, D. C., from which photographers were barred. Another was of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and a third of a spectacular grain fire in Chicago.

The exhibit includes in its display of 150 pictures many of leading Hollywood personalities. THE TRIBUNE'S color studio has scored numerous "firsts" since it was opened in 1936 as the first newspaper studio of its type in the country. It was the first to reproduce spot news color pictures the morning after the events depicted.

CONNALLY URGES INTERIM UNIT ON ALLIED AFFAIRS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14 (AP).—Sen. Conally [D., Tex.] proposed today that the allied nations speed the international handling of world political questions by creating a provisional council for that purpose.

The chairman of the senate foreign relations committee said he will lay before Secretary of State Stettinius this week a suggestion that an interim body of this nature be formed when the forthcoming full dress diplomatic conference agrees on the terms of a world security organization.

Functions Advisory.

The council, backed by the weight of all of the allies, could act in an advisory capacity to deal with controversies that already had arisen and which may develop while the permanent peace keeping agreement is being ratified by the United States and other countries involved, he said in an interview.

"Of course," Connally said, "it [the council] would have no authority to use force, but with representatives of the biggest nations of the world as members, and backed by the weight of opinion of other allied countries, it probably could settle a great many vexing questions."

If such a council now were in operation, he said, it undoubtedly would have inquired into the situation in Greece and would have been prepared to make representations to both the contending Greek factions and the British which might have led to a solution without bloodshed.

No Present Organization.

There now is no direct machinery for dealing with such problems, altho a European advisory commission created at the Moscow conference of foreign ministers has concerned itself with questions involved in the control of enemy countries.

The Dumbarton Oaks agreement envisions the creation of a directing council of 11 members to carry on the operations of the proposed world security organization. Of these, four or five—if France is included—would be permanent members. The six other places would be rotated among smaller countries at the choice of the general assembly.

It is Connally's idea that if the provisional council is set up, its membership should parallel, as nearly as possible, the permanent group. He conceded it might be impossible for the conference to designate the smaller nation members, but contended that the big five could carry on in that case.

dent of the teamsters and a favorite of Mr. Roosevelt's, made secretary of labor but the CIO wouldn't like that. The CIO ideal of a secretary of labor is Hillman but his appointment would raise such a storm that the CIO is not even asking it. The influence of the CIO is being exerted in behalf of Vice President Wallace but Wallace is so much the darling of the CIO that the AFL would be suspicious of him as secretary of labor.

Others, commanding to a greater degree the confidence of both labor organizations, have been mentioned, including John G. Winant, ambassador to Great Britain, and John R. Steelman, director of the labor department conciliation service.

Wallace to Get Job.

Mr. Wallace is to get a job of some kind. The President has said that he would be retained after the close of his term next Saturday in a position of importance to the administration. He is to receive such preferment not only as a mark of the President's high confidence in him but as a consolation prize for Mr. Roosevelt's politically enforced ditching of the Vice President for renomination with the Presidential "kiss of death" letter last July.

It has been known for some time that the Vice President prefers the commerce portfolio. He is said to have written a letter to Mr. Roosevelt requesting appointment to the cabinet post now held by Jesse Jones, with whom the Vice President engaged in venomous controversy last year over economic warfare until the President squelched them both and removed Wallace from the foreign economic administration. If Jones should be turned out to make way for the Vice President it would be a signal triumph for Mr. Wallace over an ancient adversary. When Mr. Roosevelt was asked at a press conference if he had received the reputed letter from Wallace asking appointment as secretary of commerce he turned the question aside with the answer that he would have to consult his private letter file.

Jones, however, possesses enormous influence at court and may be able to defeat the scheming in behalf of Wallace. A close personal friend is Harry Hopkins, the President's chief confidant, who piloted young Edward R. Stettinius into the cabinet and generally wields vast power in making and breaking public servants.

CIO Insists on Wallace.

The CIO is insistent that Wallace be given an important office not only because he is a champion of CIO policies and was the CIO candidate for renomination but because he is the CIO entry for President in 1948—that is, provided Mr. Roosevelt does not seek a fifth term. The CIO buildup of Wallace for 1948 has already begun.

Wallace's reputed preference for the commercial appointment is said to be the preference of the CIO also. The CIO and the collectivists generally regard the commerce department as extremely important to them because the government with 10 billions invested in industrial plants is likely to be in business on a large scale for a long time after the end of the war. Such activities would be under the commerce department.

If Wallace should fail to land as secretary of commerce or of labor he might be returned to his old post of secretary of agriculture, given an important position in the diplomatic service or appointed to the administration of post-war economic policies.

180 Nazis Die as Norse Tumble Train Off Bridge

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 14 (AP). — Norwegian saboteurs have wrecked a German troop train by blowing up a bridge south of Joerstat on the line to Trondheim, the newspaper Morgentidningen reported today. A 20 car train tumbled into a river valley, killing 180 Nazis and injuring many others, when explosives were set off just as the train neared the bridge, the newspaper said.

SEVEN MURDER CHARGES FILED IN FIREBUG CASE

Bohme Shows How He Applied Torch.

Charles Bohme, 44, of 1135 E. 44th st., lame, slighty built shipping room clerk who confessed he had set fire to 24 Kenwood district homes since July 15 because he had an inexplicable "urge," was booked early today by Hyde Park police on seven charges of murder by arson.

The murder charges, preferred by Lt. Leonard McPhail and Sgt. James McMahon, were based upon Bohme's alleged confession that one of the fires was in the Lille apartments at 1353 E. 47th pl., on Nov. 19, and in which two men and four women were burned to death, and a fifth woman died in a plunge to escape the flames.

Lt. McPhail said Bohme listed among the other fires one in which another man was burned, but the police did not include this among the charges, he added. Bohme will be arraigned today in Felony court.

Demonstrates His Method.

Bohme was taken to the Lille apartments yesterday and showed investigators how he started the fatal fire.

He had been drinking in a tavern nearby, he said, and when he started home he waited for a street car at 47th st. and Lake Park av. When no street car came, he said, he decided to find a warm basement and sleep there.

He entered the Lille apartments thru the front vestibule, he said, and went to the basement. There he found an old mattress under the stairs.

"All of a sudden," he said, "I got an urge to start a fire. I lighted a cigaret and threw the match on the mattress. When the flames were about a foot high, I walked out the back door and went back to get a street car. Then the fire engines came along and I went back and watched the fire."

Also Taken to Church.

Bohme also accompanied police, headed by Capt. William Burke of the Hyde Park station, and Assistant State's Atty. Francis McCurrie, to St. Ambrose church, 47th st. and Ellis av., where he was unsuccessful in an attempt to start a fire.

Earlier yesterday, Bohme confessed to Capt. Burke setting 17 fires in the Kenwood district, following a day of questioning in which he first had admitted setting the fires, and later repudiated his statement while undergoing a lie detector test. In the later confessions, Bohme admitted 24 fires, police said.

Other Fires Laid to Him.

In addition to the Lille apartments fire, Bohme admitted setting the following: July 15, 1140 E. 47th st.; Sept. 3, 1226 E. 47th st.; Sept. 15, 4726-30 Woodlawn av.; Sept. 18, 4961-63 Lake Park av.; Sept. 25, 4449-53 Oakenwald av.; Sept. 26, 4736 and 4744 Woodlawn av., 4717 Greenwood av., and 4734 Ellis av.; Oct. 9, 4065-67 Ellis av.; Oct. 18, 4706 Woodlawn av., 1036 E. 46th st., 4554 Greenwood av., 1044 E. 47th st.; Nov. 14, 1118 E. 54th pl.; Nov. 24, 1036-40 E. 47th st.; Jan. 1, 4726 Woodlawn av., and 4730, 4637, 4344; and 4700 Ellis av.; Jan. 12, 4220 Ellis av. and 4465 Oakenwald av.

Heart Attack Kills Wife of Soldier Missing in War

Mrs. Leda McDonald, 30, of 1711 N. Washtenaw av., died of a heart attack yesterday in her home. Three days ago the war department advised her that her former husband, Sgt. Peter Hoysak, was missing in action in Germany. She previously had been advised that her second husband, William, was missing in action in France.

Symposium!

It is just too bad that every one of our citizens does not have an opportunity to read a symposium that just came to our desk. It is entitled "Voluntary Self Regulation in the Tavern and Liquor Store." Please note that word "voluntary."

The dispensing of and sale of alcoholic beverages carry with them a social responsibility. In this symposium the men who carry this responsibility tell what they are doing to prevent over-indulgence, which means abuse, and to promote temperance, which means intelligent use.

The symposium's pages are crowded with evidence of intensive efforts by both organizations and individuals in the retail branch of the alcoholic beverage business to cooperate in every possible way with liquor administrators and others, including the military authorities and the clergy. This evidence is clear-cut and proves a keen perception of the importance of sound community relations.

What a far cry from those late, lamentable years wherein the experiment of Prohibition was tried with such dismal failure in this country!

Unfortunately, we have with us today some undoubtedly sincere and well-meaning folk who would like "to try it again." We wish that they too would have an opportunity to read this symposium. Then we'd like to take them on a personally conducted tour for a visit to the "chamber of horrors" of an era which ended a little over eleven years ago. We are quite sure they would say, "Enough. Let's have no more of that ever, ever again. Take me out of here. I want to go back to—today!"

MORE SNOW DUE AS CITY SHOVELS OUT OF STORM

More snow for Chicago and the suburbs was forecast last night as the community dug itself out of Saturday night's storm but found driving and walking hazardous. Weatherman G. L. Canaday said the snow expected this morning would be light and not add much to the 10 inches covering this area.

Saturday night's storm, which brought an official 4.9 inches of snow, came at a fortunate time for transportation companies which were not confronted with rush hour problems. Officials of the Rapid Transit lines said because temperatures were moderate there was no freezeup of switches. Operation was back to normal yesterday.

Stalled automobiles in the tracks caused some delays for street cars but no accidents were reported. Service was on schedule yesterday. Runways at Chicago airport were usable but some flights were delayed because of poor visibility. Police of the three county highway stations said highways were "slick" from snow packed on top of ice and cautioned motorists to drive slowly. Temperatures today will be mild, Canady said.

of The Milwaukee Road:

In the urgency and magnitude of our war work it is sometimes difficult to give our patrons the high standard of service and personal attention on which our good name is founded.

Service is our entire stock in trade. We must zealously guard against any let-down that depreciates it. Our obligations to each shipper and each traveler remain constant, even under the pressure of total war.

In fulfilling these obligations we must never forget that in railroading the human element is even more important than the mechanical element. Public opinion is the sum total of what each patron thinks of our personnel and facilities.

Let's keep our friends and make new ones. Let's continue to make shipping on The Milwaukee Road a satisfaction and traveling on The Milwaukee Road a pleasure. In this way alone can we maintain our reputation for friendliness and efficiency.

Such a reputation means much to The Milwaukee Road's future, and it's IN YOUR HANDS and mine.

War Days Are Gray and Gold for Ball Family

BY JUDITH CASS.

GOOD news and bad arrived simultaneously in Mrs. Charles A. Ball's home in Winnetka. While awaiting further news about one son, Quarter-Master John Wilder Ball, who was reported missing in action with the navy in the Philippines two weeks ago, Mrs. Ball has been busy welcoming another son, Ensign Daniel H. Ball, and his fiancée, Miss Charleen Marschall.

Today announcement is being made of their engagement by Miss Marschall's mother, Mrs. Helen Marschall of Little Rock, Ark., formerly of Kenilworth. Miss Marschall and her fiancé were members of the 1942 graduating class at New Trier High school. Miss Marschall, whose father is Charles H. Marschall of Kenilworth, attended Stephens college.

Ensign Ball attended Washington and Lee, was enrolled at the University of North Carolina under the navy V-12 program, and received his commission from the midshipmen's school at Columbia university. He is leaving tomorrow for Norfolk, Va., following a 10 day leave, for which Miss Marschall came from Arkansas.

Quarter Master Ball, who went overseas last July, has been in the navy since 1942. He was graduated in 1941 from New Trier, where he was president of the student council, and spent one year at Dartmouth college. His bride of last summer, the former Phyllis Hahn, is living with her parents in Seattle, Wash. The third son of the family, Ensign Charles A. Ball, is assistant engineering officer on board a ship in the Pacific.

Birth News.

As soon as he can get leave from his post in Fort Riley, Kas., Capt. Robert C. Meleney Jr. will come to Winnetka to meet his new daughter, born on Jan. 3 in the Evanston hospital. Mrs. Meleney, the former Jane Allen; the baby, who has been named Elizabeth Durand; and Elizabeth's 15 month old brother, Robert Colt, will be living this winter in the home of Mrs. Meleney's grandparents, the E. Hubert Allens, who have gone to Altadena, Cal. The children's maternal grandparents are the C. Durand Allens.

Mrs. Meleney's sister, Mrs. John Patrick Trench, and her little daughter, Suzette, are spending two or three months with her husband's family in Staten Island, N. Y. Lt. Trench will leave soon for overseas duty with the navy.

Mrs. Foster Hannaford will be going to California soon to meet her new grandchild, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Churchill [Taylor Hannaford], who was born on Jan. 3 in Berkeley, Cal. The baby has been named Creighton. At present one of his aunts, Mrs. Frederick Greeley [Priscilla Hannaford], is in Winnetka with her parents, waiting to join Lt. Greeley as soon as he receives his new orders. Lt. Greeley is in Miami, Fla., with the army air forces.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Moulds of South Shore drive became the parents of a son, Steven Porter, on Dec. 13 in Chicago Lying-In hospital. The baby is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Moulds and of Mrs. Harry Reynolds, who recently moved from Winnetka to California. The senior Mr. Moulds is secretary of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago.

On Today's Calendar.

The new board of the Mary Crane league, headed by Mrs. George D. Theisen, will take office during the group's annual meeting at noon today in the Arts club. Speaking on the program will be Russell W. Ballard, director of Hull House; Miss Edna Dean Baker, president of the National College of Education and co-founder of the nursery with the late Jane Addams; Miss Nina Kenagy, director of the nursery; Florence Bourke Ellis, who has conducted a series of benefit book reviews for the league for the last eight years, and Mrs. Smith W. Storey, president of the newly formed senior board. Mrs. Ralph Rudolph is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Morgan Weed, acting president of the junior group of the Highland Park-Ravinia center of the Infant Welfare society, will entertain at tea from 3 to 5 p. m. today for the outgoing and incoming boards.

The board of the Convalescent Home for Women and Children will hold its regular monthly board meeting at 11:30 a. m. today in the Woman's Athletic club. Mrs. James H. Tatman and Mrs. Homer H. Cooper will be hostesses at luncheon which will follow the meeting.

Father Alfonso Castiello will speak on "Latin America's Cultural Heritage" at a special dinner meeting of the Circulo Cervantes at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Oak room of the Yar restaurant. Father Castiello, dean of the faculty of philosophy and literature at the Centro Cultural Universitario of Mexico City, is teaching at Loyola university during the winter quarter as visiting Latin American professor.

Original Creations in New York Dress Institute's Preview for Spring

Original costumes by Pauline Trigere displayed in New York Dress institute's spring showings and sketched by Margot, who accompanied Rea Seeger, Tribune fashion editor, to New York to bring the latest in fashions to Tribune readers.

A. Slim two piece suit composed of navy wool skirt and unusual burnt orange soft fleece wool jacket. Note double row of "shoe buttons" down front and smooth, rounded shoulders.

B. Print dress of real silk featuring effective medallion motif. Trigere's famous "bateau" neck line, achieved with a soft fold, is a signature detail. Skirt flares easily in front.

C. Minute black and white check wool cape costume with contrasting shirt blouse of thread thin striped wool to match gauntlet gloves. Jaunty cape has famous Trigere shoulders.

D. New "peignoir" coat fashioned of sleek black ottoman, a ribbed fabric that dramatizes the subtle bias cut. Coat may be worn uncompromisingly straight or with a belt.

French Stylist Makes Good in U. S. Fashions

BY REA SEEGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 14.—Petite, dynamic Pauline Trigere must be completely sold on America. For, all records have been broken in the speed with which she captivated the most discriminating women of this country with her exquisitely subtle clothes. In five short years this Gallic wizard has soared to the very top.

Firmly established in a very intimately French shop, Trigere presents her breathtakingly perfect clothes with an instinctive swish and elegance. Such a microscopic detail as her slender "order pencils" have not escaped her personalized accent. They're a soft and delicate flesh pink!

Trigere belongs to the American designer group comprising the New York Dress institute, and during last week's press week showing paraded her originals past the delighted fashion writers. The originals she displayed are literally something out of this world, for they're dresses, suits, and coats made with "grand couture" of Paris perfection plus all the sleek chic which marks the American designers' best.

It is in the spring collection by Trigere that you'll see and gloat over flawless cut and detail, the finest available fabrics, and the most meticulous bias cut of anything seen since the heyday of Vionnet, when a true bias was a matter of caliper precision. This is the true bias cut that achieves impeccable smoothness and moulding of the material and what was known in other days as a "perfect fit."

Great imagination also is expressed in the many and varied details — long slanted inset bands, curved yoke shoulders, bias cut double folds across a hip line, bateau neck lines, distinctive belts, side-tied bows, and flared inset sections in both jacket and skirts.

Trigere's smartest color combination is that of burnt orange with deep navy. Her most subtle simplicity is the "peignoir" coat of swank black ottoman, every inch cut on a bias. The suit that will make history is the summer model of shiny black alpaca with a black and white printed jacket. The most subtle French coat is one of deep navy blue wool with a shoulder cape cut and fashioned in a clever manner right in with the rest of the fitted and flattering silhouette.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Steppingstones.

When Prof. Frederick G. Nichols of Harvard university undertook a study of the private secretary, her background and duties, 312 secretaries were questioned regarding previous business experience. Of that number, 164 had held positions as stenographers; 33 had been correspondents; 20 had served as assistant to a private secretary; 22 were statistical clerks; 17 had been bookkeepers; 15 previously were dictating machine operators; 14 were personnel clerks; 14 had been typists, and 13 had begun as file clerks.

From such a study it can be concluded that not many private secretaries begin as private secretaries. For the girl who has her eye fixed on the position of private secretary there are other office jobs that serve as steppingstones. Even in the midst of help shortage it still is necessary to climb to reach the top.

The Gamut.

Some white collar girls have a hectic time. All of the following happened to a young steno in a single day, according to her way of talking:

"It was just torture for me to get up this morning!"

"This room is so hot I'm fairly baking!"

"I was petrified!"

"Shut that window; I'm frozen stiff!"

"You make me sick!"

"I'm simply stuffed!"

"He drives me crazy!"

"I nearly had a fit!"

"My dear, I'm just dead!"

Smoke Test.

The voice of the girl in the Oxford gray coat and beret could be heard above the noise of the bus. "Why, of course, he loves her!" she exclaimed indignantly, "Didn't he bring her a whole pack of cigarets?"

The Heart Dictates.

On New Year's day I made a vow
That I'd restrain my heart somehow
From feeling such intense delight
To hear your voice, or catch a sight
Of you, and falsely thought it could
Be done, but I misunderstood
That hearts will not obey command
And sometimes get quite out of hand!

Dear Diary BY BECKY

Thru the Looking Glass

When a beauty editor talks about war nerves or tries to suggest ways to keep them away from a woman's door, she runs a great risk of seeming completely heartless. But the fact remains that war nerves are something none of us can afford, and every one of us ought to give the problem some intelligent thought, even in the face of terrible sorrow or harrowing worry.

Jittering doesn't solve anything, where working on a problem does . . . it at least gives the therapeutic release of doing something, which is far better than tearing one's hair.

Women who are under special strain should strive to organize their time so that they're busy, and they at least should give a whirl to doing other things that are, to use a phrase we know is irritating, "good for them."

Don't let sleeplessness pile up, if you have to scrub a couple of floors before you go to bed. If you can't beat it any other way, do some physical work until your muscles ache with such weariness that not all the bogeys in the world could keep you awake. Get fresh air, too—it's great stuff for insomnia.

And there is a physical restlessness that comes with worry that you'll have to fight, too. Hold that fidget! Pop into a nice warm tub, beautifully flavored with salt or oil that smells nice, and stay in the water at least a full five minutes longer than you normally would. This is more relaxing than you might realize.

Above all, keep busy. Organize your time so that you're not fluttering but really doggedly doing the kind of thing that shows results, whether it's making curtains, polishing silver, or writing the letters you owe people.

We know this is all easier said than done by a woman frantic with worry no outsider can appreciate—but we know, too, that it's helpful if she'll only try it.

'Doughgirls' Is Cute Film on an Old Theme

"THE DOUGHGIRLS."

By Mae Tinée.

"The Doughgirls" is a giddy farce with a theme that is beginning to wear a bit on the edges—war time crowding in Washington. The story is long and involved and concerns three ex-chorus girls plus three men who sometimes are and occasionally are not their legal husbands, for various reasons. The three couples, plus a Russian soldier [female], a radio commentator, and a number of other people, strive constantly for the possession of one bridal suite.

There are some pretty good gags and Jane Wyman is cute and kittenish as the dumb one of the trio, with the statuesque Ann Sheridan and Alexis Smith as her unwelcome guests. However, Eve Arden does an excellent job as the guerrilla fighter and very nearly outdoes every one else in the cast. The men are adequate but not overwhelming in their roles, altho I did like Alan Mowbray's satirical sketch of a pompous radio commentator, and it was nice to see Regis Toomey again, even if his role wasn't much.

It isn't a bad little comedy and the audience at the Chicago seemed to be amused by it, including a lady in back of me who, with the aid of only a hunk of gum, gave a fiendishly accurate imitation of a machine gun during the entire film. There oughta be a law!

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 14.—Ruth Hussey has been borrowed to co-star with Pat O'Brien and Adolphe Menjou in "Man Alive" at RKO. . . . Altho William Gargan and his brother Ed have already said they'd "Follow That Woman" for Pine and Thomas, they don't know yet what woman they've got to follow. Look out, fellows, it might be me! . . . Greta Garbo returns at the end of the month to do a mystery. It will be a mystery if she does it. . . . Cole Porter, out of the hospital, goes for a week to his upstate home with Linda. He will return here in March, with Jack Warner begging him to do another picture for them. . . . Errol Flynn has canceled his New York trip until after "The Frontiersman" is ready to release. . . . I haven't yet seen "I'll Be Seeing You," advertised as a bowl of mush gone lumpy, but that's what it was to this reporter.

Then They Were Twelve.

Mrs. Gregory Peck lingered on with Rosa Stradner in New York. Gregory tells me they had his wife's whole family in their suite at the Waldorf for Christmas dinner, and cut off all the phones. I asked what the family thought of it. He said, "I don't know. They said it in Finnish. But my mother-in-law kept saying, 'Look! We're dining in the Waldorf Tower—and I used to think your wife was such an ugly baby!'" . . . Greg's biggest kick was in night clubs, where a belle would saunter up and say, "I made a bet with my boy friend—are you Gregory Peck?" And he was able to say, "You win, honey." He's dying to do "Leave Her to Heaven" with Joan Fontaine, but he's so booked up now, he doesn't know whether he's coming or going. If I know Gregory, he's going—and in the right direction.

She Gathers No Moss.

Virginia Van Upp has finally moved into Sidney Buchman's plush offices at Columbia. She's the big noise over there now. She's a darned clever writer, and way 'way back in the old days was Horace Jackson's secretary. . . . Lee Shubert is on his way here to complete arrangements for "Sweet Surrender," a musical which is about the battle between Monterey and Los Angeles years ago. It will feature Leo Carrillo. They're trying to get Helen Broderick and Jimmy Melton for other top roles. The lyrics kid the pants off everything in Los Angeles, from weather to homes and people. That alone will cause it to run in San Francisco a year. It would be too good to be true, having two plays succeed here before they hit Broadway. Remember "Song of Norway" opened on the west coast. . . . "Ten Little Indians" starts today with June Duprez and Judith Anderson added, Judith playing the part they wanted ZaSu Pitts for. . . . After all these years, George Jessel has finally come thru as a producer. He started "Dolly Sisters" today. . . . Lt. John Devereaux Drew, John Drew's grandson, who's with Gen. Patton's army, writes: "If I live a few weeks longer, I'll be a captain."

An Amazing Partnership.

David Loew and Albert Lewin join with the Hakim brothers to produce "Manon Lescaut," with Hurd Hatfield and Angela Lansbury. When it was done before, with John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, it was called "When a Man Loves." . . . Phil Silvers, doing a scene in "Thousand and One Nights," leans against a camel and tells about his grandmother singing to him on the desert. Then Silvers breaks into song. The camel spits at him, as only a camel can. Phil screams, "So you don't like my grandmother's singing!"—and spits back at him. It was then Al Green walked off the set to roar, and I made for the door to escape the camel. . . . The Emily Kimbrough - Cornelia Otis Skinner and Paramount battle over whether their names can be used in the new film "Our Hearts Were Growing Up" is the friendliest ever held. When Emily was here, she and Frank Freeman wined and dined together and laughed over the coming suit.

A Pocketful of Suspense.

Alfred Hitchcock is the man to do it, so he's doing it—a suspense anthology, in a pocket sized edition. He'll delve back into the ancient mystery stories and go right straight thru to the present day. I can see him now, just gloating over each bit of horror. He'll end up with ideas for half a dozen new pictures. . . . A new twosome—Fred Brady and Katherine Booth—at the Players. . . . Jack Haley lost his wallet in Italy. The other day after his broadcast, Lt. Jack Pelham returned it to him. Pelham found it in Burma. This might be an answer to that oft repeated question—Just how far can money go?

'Private Investigator Maclain'

(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

By Baynard Kendrick

SYNOPSIS: In the sumptuous terrace apartment of the successful novelist, Larmar Jordan, a cocktail party is in session. Capt. Duncan Maclain sits alone with his Seeing Eye dog, Schnucke. He is joined by Sarah Hanley, Larmar's agent. Out on the terrace Sybella Ford, his fiancee, is chatting with Paul Hirst, Larmar's secretary. Troy Singleton arrives. Bob Morse, reporter, tells Maclain he is doing a profile on Larmar, whose wife, Lucia, is very charming and whose latest inamorata is Troy Singleton. Troy insists she received an invitation. Larmar accuses Lucia of sending it for some dramatic purpose. After the guests have gone Ellis Brown Mitchell, gun expert, seeks Hirst's aid in cataloging Larmar's gun collection. Larmar tells Paul he is going to sell his guns. Paul realizes there is something catastrophic to make him dispose of his prize collection. Next day, alone in his apartment, Larmar is studying his financial status, depleted by Troy's demands, when she visits him.

INSTALMENT VII.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

"Come in." Larmar's lips set in a cynical line. "Go out on the terrace and sit down. I'll make us a couple of drinks." His face was drawn as he watched the swing of Troy's figure going out the terrace door.

He had fixed a shaker of martinis and put it on a silver tray with two crystal glasses when the carillon across the street began to chime. As he stepped into the study carrying the tray, cutting thru the brazen notes of the carillon came the sharp quick crack of a gun.

Out on the terrace Troy was seated in the metal chair in front of his desk. For an instant Larmar stopped—watching her thru the open door. Then something about the way she slumped down, slowly relaxed his fingers so that he dropped the cocktail tray.

He called to her once from the door. A single startled, "Troy!"

She sat quite motionless with never a word to say. Larmar crossed the terrace and stared at the neat round hole over her heart in the light blue dress where a spot of blood had widened and begun to trickle down.

Suddenly maddened, Larmar tore thru the privet hedge and leaned far over the wide stone coping.

He turned to the desk, touched Troy again and said her name softly.

Across the street the carillon began another hymn.

Many excellent books have been written setting forth in some detail the procedure of a trained investigator when he arrives at the scene of murder.

Fortunately or unfortunately, depending upon the point of view, no textbook has ever been issued to cover adequately the correct procedure of a murderer. Possibly the scope is too broad.

It was a stupefying moment at best for Larmar Jordan, one scarcely productive of the clear and logical thinking which had made his books a success. Troy Singleton was dead. The seconds were ticking along. He had seen her walk out very much alive a very few minutes before. The terrace dropped down in steep unscalable walls 14 stories on each side and six at the back to another terrace below.

Held with a terrific clamp of fascination, Larmar took a step closer and looked at her again, watching the widening stain on her dress and the play of setting sunlight on her hair.

The chimes in the church were still ringing. He turned and stared up vacuously, letting his eyes climb tier by tier to where the Arday apartments ended in a tower on the 20th floor. Several windows were opened in the apartments above. Enough gumption and gun lore returned for him to realize that Troy's wound would have been in the back had she been shot from a window above. Numb, and fighting a losing battle to contain himself, he went behind his desk and sat down.

He had to leave immediately, unable to face Troy's eyes, half closed in a dead accusing stare.

A tidal wave of disbelief swept over him, scourging him into action. The girl was dead, shot thru the heart. Bullets didn't come out of thin air.

Moved by a spasm approaching insanity, he dashed into the apartment and tore from room to room, peering under beds, flinging open doors and thrusting clothing aside in the closets.

The carillon stopped.

Winnie came in and followed him about, barking excitedly at this newfound game. His jumping nerves in a livid painful tangle, Larmar cursed the dog and shut him up in Lucia's room. Stiff legged, walking like an old man, he returned to the terrace.

Summoning a doctor seemed the logical thing to do. Larmar went inside, sat down, and reached for the phone by the study divan. He discarded it, picking up the telephone directory instead and leafing feverishly thru its pages until the Smiths came to view. There were literally hundreds of Smiths. For the life of him he couldn't remember whether his personal physician was J. George or George J. A laborious search thru the G's and J's finally unearthed the illusive doctor.

"Dr. George J. Smith's office," said a voice on the phone.

"I want to speak to the doctor."

"I'm sorry. The doctor's hours are from nine to one. May I have your name?"

"No," Larmar said, filled with a newfound caution. "Do you think I might find him at home? This is a personal call."

"I'm sorry," said the voice, "but Dr. Smith is away. If it's an emergency, Dr. Harvey is handling his practice. I can give you Dr. Harvey's phone number or I can take a message."

"Skip it," said Larmar.

His hand felt cold and clammy as he released the telephone. The thought of policemen had started his active imagination jumping up and down.

The apartment was frighteningly silent.

"God above! I didn't kill her," he said aloud. His own voice upset him still more by its raucous, unnatural sound.

He started to analyze the situation with what at the moment seemed to be sound common sense.

A girl was shot on your terrace, but you didn't do it.

She was instantly killed.

Or was she?

Larmar got up with a groan, dashed into Lucia's room and started searching for a hand mirror. Winnie jumped up on him and greeted him. He cowered when Larmar sternly ordered him down. He found a gold backed mirror on the dressing table, shut the dog up again, and returned to Troy.

The mirror, held close to her full red lips, without a wisp of her breath to mar its surface stayed as clear as a summer dawn. Obviously something had to be done. Paul would return any minute, and Lucia, too. His failure to call the police might be damning.

Baby Furniture and Clothing Badly Needed

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Pleas for baby furniture come with every mail, and we urge readers who have play pens, cribs, buggies, and other such items no longer in use to communicate with us so that we may place them with needy families.

Miss X., a social worker, is interested in obtaining a high chair, nursery chair, and blankets for a baby girl, 6 months old, who comes from a home in which such necessities cannot be figured in the family budget.

Mrs. D. writes: "I have four youngsters, the youngest a baby boy, 6 months old, who is very lively. He has outgrown his bassinet and can no longer sleep comfortably or safely in it. My husband has been unable to work for over a year and is now in a sanitarium. Consequently, we cannot afford to buy a larger crib or a chest of drawers for the children's clothing, which is now placed in paper boxes, making neatness and order extremely difficult."

Mrs. B. has supported her family since her husband's death three years ago, and asks our aid now only because sickness, caused by overwork, prevents her from providing a few essentials for her two children. A large size child's bed is needed for her 3 year old son who is cramped in his outgrown crib, and a warm coat, size 12, for her older boy.

Pork shoulder chops are much easier on the red point budget than loin chops, and just as delicious when prepared attractively. Pork of any kind is scarce, but when you can procure a couple of thick shoulder chops, make a meal of them, thus:

To serve two, buy two inch thick shoulder chops. Spread them thinly with prepared mustard. Make a dressing using 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, a sprinkling of sage or poultry seasoning, and ½ teaspoon salt. Add just enough water to moisten. Brown the chops in a heavy skillet, then top with the dressing, pressing it firmly. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Uncover and bake 20 minutes longer, or until pork is cooked and dressing is crisp and brown.

Pre-cook two sweet potatoes for 10 minutes, peel them, and place them in the pan with the pork chops to bake, if you like. They should be tender when the meat is cooked. With these thick chops, really individual "roasts" of pork, and the sweet potatoes, serve applesauce or baked apples, green beans, a crisp salad, a beverage and no dessert, unless you can't live without dessert, in which case I'd suggest a small square of gingerbread with lemon or orange sauce.

If you omit the applesauce from the pork chop dinner, prune and apple cobbler would be an excellent dessert. If you haven't sugar for it, use honey, and cut down on the water.

Prune and Apple Cobbler.
[Six Servings.]

1 cup sugar
⅔ cup cooked pitted prunes
1½ cups diced apples
1 cup sifted enriched flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon shortening
⅓ to ½ cup milk
1 teaspoon confectioners' sugar

Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Add prunes and apples and let come to a boil. Make biscuit dough this way: Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar together. Cut in shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently for ½ minute. Roll into a square, 8 by 8 inches. Spread fruit mixture in greased 8 inch square pan and top with biscuit dough, pressing dough to edges of pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Best served warm.

"Our 7 year old son," writes a mother, "is very intelligent for his years, so his teachers tell us, and we would appreciate it if you would give use some suggestions as to how we can help him at home to satisfy his thirst for knowledge, etc."

A wise mother, indeed. If you have a brilliant child you cannot leave his education entirely up to his teachers [of course, you shouldn't with any child, as a matter of fact]. Brilliant children are mentally eager; their minds need more food than do those of average children. So, without forcing them, you should provide for those needs at home—not forcing, but responding and supplying their needs.

Gifted children are, contrary to general opinion, usually gifted in several directions, or, as we say, have many aptitudes.

Your gifted child gets a great deal from trips, jaunts, excursions, and real journeys. He often is keenly observant, asks questions, remembers, and frequently uses the experiences gained in this way in creative work or play—in his writing, his art, or his manual activity.

A love of scientific pursuits or enthusiasm for nature and wild life sometimes is outstanding in the gifted child. Laboratory, reading, and excursions are suggestions for these aptitudes.

Does all this sound like a tremendous meal of too many courses, likely to create mental indigestion? It isn't and it doesn't. It can all come about gradually and rather casually in the course of the days, as you watch your child and respond to what he obviously enjoys and easily assimilates.

I might add that these suggestions also apply to the average boy and girl, and to what you can do to enrich their leisure.

Grace Moore Is Dazzling in Shocking Pink

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

A Grace Moore recital is less a concert than a three ring circus, and yesterday's at the Civic Opera house had everything but sawdust and a brass band. Miss Moore swept out on the stage with blonde curls piled high, dazzling in a shocking pink gown [note to indignant males: that's a color, not a reproach!], with sequined epaulets blazing to match, and she gave a capacity History and Enjoyment of Music audience the works.

She sang, she beamed, she received flowers [unerringly plucking the orchid grown to order for her gown], she waved harmonious accessories, sank deep into glowing curtsies, and made speeches, both humorous and sentimental. If you were down front, the voltage was a little high, but you had to remember that her fire power had to cover a lot of territory, right up to the distant gallery. Judging by the general uproar, she could count it a bull's-eye.

This was no mean achievement, for it rested on personality first and singing second. Either Miss Moore had a touch of Chicago throat, or her voice has lost much of the luscious warmth once its major asset. She relied on emotional rather than vocal line to carry her thru, so the opening group by Lully, Gretry and Handel was little more than a polite interlude while you waited for the firworks to begin.

But the Debussy was quite another story. Lia's air from "The Prodigal Son," always a Moore favorite, had a focused intensity of mood, and when she sang the same composer's "La Mort des Amants," she reminded me, a little, of Mary Garden. She caught the whiff of aphrodisiac in the song and the impassioned restraint to make it count in terms of music. And she might consider burning incense to Paulin, who wrote precisely the kind of song she does best in the wistfully amorous "Que Deviennent les Roses?"

When it came to other songs, much-hinged on what they asked of her voice. Tschaikowsky's "None but the Lonely Heart," simply sung, went better than the bravura "Toi Seule." Mimi's gentle story was more convincingly told than Butterfly's anguish. The folk songs would have been more successful had the words been more distinct, but Otto Hertz's accompaniments were clarity itself from the encored "Indian Love Call" to Carpenter's febrile "Serenade."

About those dedications. "Red Rosey Bush" was sung for "all the other hillbillies" by Tennessee's demure Miss Moore, and Kreisler's "The Old Refrain" went to the men and women in service who apparently were her guests, after all her clamor in advance about lack of provision for them in a sold-out house. Too bad Miss Moore didn't know in time that her own contract stipulated no one could be seated on the stage. Navy blue and khaki might have had fun at her circus, and would have made a far more flattering background than that puce colored horror which is going to drive some of us to wearing smoked glasses to concerts.

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. Newcomb A., Detroit, Mich.—I increase the length of time my curtains will wear in the following way: Whenever I hem curtains which have no up or down to the pattern or the texture I make the bottom and the top hem the same width. In this way they can be hung in either direction, and alternated after each laundering.

Mrs. Bill T., Chicago—I am new at laundering tasks but already have learned that it pays to be careful about one's pressing cloths. I wash out any trace of scorch which can discolor the material underneath it, and if cloth is new I wash well to remove any starch or sizing.

Grace S., Peoria, Ill.—I add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which I cook rice. This is a help in keeping the grains separate.

Three Gifted Violinists Play Over Weekend

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Violinists were in the majority among music makers over the weekend. Hans Basserman, new this season to the assistant concertmaster's chair of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, made his first solo appearance at Saturday night's "Pop" concert; Patricia Travers, now on the threshold of brilliant maturity, definitely established herself as a front line violinist in her recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, and David Moll, a gifted member of the Chicago Symphony's first violin section, played music by Jewish composers at a concert of the Halevi Choral society at Kimball hall last night.

When young and pretty Miss Travers walked onto the stage of Orchestra hall, fetchingly gowned in a deep ruffled crinoline, she might easily have been mistaken for Deanna Durbin in "I Can't Help Singing." But when she played, only one comparison came to mind. It may seem like exaggerated praise, but we are sure that if subjected to a blindfold test during most of her program we would have sworn we were listening to none other than Jascha Heifetz.

For Miss Travers, more than any other of her colleagues, has that great violinist's shining purity of tone, his bold, soaring flights, his completely nonchalant mastery of every technical difficulty. Wieniawski's first concerto in F-sharp minor is generally shunned by violinists. They offer various excuses, but from Miss Travers' performance it was evident that their neglect is a matter of discretion. Only an ardent and perhaps only a young soul could glory in its romantic melodies as did this unaffected young woman, and certainly only a master virtuoso could make its relentless passages flash with streaks of forked lightning as she did.

But she is a genuine musician as well, and her versatility extended to a dashing account, yet in perfect classic style, of Mozart's concerto-like sonata No. 15 in B flat, and at the other extreme, to an interesting first performance here of so complex a modern work—sometimes slightly academic—as Walter Piston's sonata. A group of dances by Shostakovich and Camejo were brilliantly and wittily played, and Paganini's "Le Streghe" came up to the by then expected virtuosity. Hendrik Endt's accompaniments were excellent.

When Hans Basserman is seated beside John Weicher at the first violin stand of the Chicago Symphony, he achieves the perfect anonymity of the ideal orchestra player. But when, militarily erect, with the assured air of a man who knows his business, he strides down center stage to play solo, he emerges as an interesting personality. He also emerged, via Saint-Saens' concerto in B minor, as a good violinist. He is not a perfectionist—his intonation is occasionally something less than absolute—but his clean, facile technic and his authoritative musicianship stamped him as a valuable addition to the orchestra. Encored, he played unaccompanied, an unfamiliar piece by Max Regel. Mr. Defauw conducted.

Third and last of the violinistic trio was David Moll, whose warm, expressive tone in some instances discovered more of feeling and beauty than seemed to have been injected by the composers—A. S. Ellstein, Ernst Bloch, and the Chicagoan, Leon Stein—into pieces inspired by scenes of Jewish life. Mr. Moll's recreative efforts were appreciably aided by the exceptional accompaniments of Marion Hall.

Also chosen from the work of Jewish composers were the contributions of the Halevi Choral society, an earnest and enthusiastic group which in spite of a decimated male section, sang colorfully and well under the direction of Hyman Reznick. It cannot honestly be claimed, however, that any masterpieces of music were uncovered in the first part of the program.

Bishop Consecrates Chapel and Parish House in Winnetka

More than 350 parishioners took part yesterday with Bishop Wallace E. Conkling of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago in consecration of the chapel and parish house of Christ church in Winnetka. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, rector of Christ church since 1919, was one of the bishop's assistants.

The consecration ceremony was made possible by the payment of the indebtedness against the half million dollar group of parish buildings which had been dedicated in 1931. Thomas B. Chace and Holden K. Farrar, vestrymen, and D. Bligh Brasett, were in charge of a parish campaign which raised $25,000 to pay the remaining debts. The parish was founded in 1869.

Bishop Conkling spoke in the parish house auditorium after the chapel service, then joined the parishioners at a reception and tea.

Goren on Bridge - - - By Charles H. Goren

ANSWER TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As dealer you hold:
♠K7653 ♥2 ♦A9 ♣A9765
What do you bid?

A. One club. Holding 2½ honor tricks and two five card suits an opening bid is almost obligatory. But for convenience's sake you must look upon your spade suit as tho it were only a four carder. If partner responds with one of a red suit your rebid will be one spade. It would be extremely risky to open with one spade. When partner bids two of a red suit you dare not bid as high as 3 clubs and you are put to the necessity of rebidding that emaciated spade suit.

Q. 2—As dealer you hold:
♠A1075 ♥AJ952 ♦K1093 ♣None
What do you bid?

A. One heart. If partner responds with the expected two clubs your rebid will be two diamonds. Some players make it a practice to open with a spade on hands of this type, and treat it as a spade-heart two suiter. We cannot subscribe to that practice. It is not necessary for opener to bid spades, if partner has a suitable spade holding, he has the opportunity for a one over one response to the heart bid. Barring that, you might as well overlook the possibility of making spades trumps.

Q. 3—Partner opens with 1 heart and you hold:
♠K1075 ♥KQ96 ♦A1074 ♣2
What is your response?

A. Three hearts. This is preferable to an introductory bid of spades or diamonds. A direct bid which fully and accurately describes your hand both as to strength and type, is better than an indirect bid which as a rule presents future problems.

Q. 4—Partner opens with 1 spade and you hold:
♠75 ♥6432 ♦AJ6 ♣A643
What is your response?

A. One no trump. True enough this is above the recognized limit of a no trump response, but no other bid is suitable. The hand definitely does not measure up to a two club response and the slight underbid should be risked. If partner is obliged to pass the chances are greatly in favor of there being no game.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠A1062 ♥32 ♦A64 ♣K543
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 heart	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. One spade. Despite the fact that you have previously passed you should resist the impulse to jump to two no trump, a characteristic prevalent in many circles when 2½ honor tricks have been neglected on a prior round. If partner fails to act again there is very little likelihood that you will have cause for remorse. If you scattered a few intermediate cards here and there, the two no trump response would be acceptable.

Q. 6.—As South you hold:
♠J105 ♥AK764 ♦A92 ♣103
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Two spades. This takes care of everything. If partner has an indifferent hand he will pass and that should be good contract. If he has a good hand and goes on, that should be very pleasant. The important thing is to resist the temptation to rebid the hearts just because they are a five card suit. On many hands partner will have to pass the heart rebid with only one or two hearts and that will be the wrong contract.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠QJ976 ♥AK5 ♦AQ1095 ♣None
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Spade	2 Clubs	2 Hearts	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Three diamonds. While this is not a technical force, yet it is quite certain that partner will not pass inasmuch as he acted freely over the adverse two club bid. It is desirable to show the diamond suit at this point inasmuch as the club control and the heart support can be shown on later rounds, whereas if you made an immediate club cue bid, it would become too involved to show that you really had a diamond suit, which may become important.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠AJ10 ♥K76542 ♦None ♣AK52
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Heart	2 Diamonds	Double	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Pass. While ordinarily the holding of a 6 card suit and a void in the suit doubled militates against standing for a low penalty double, nevertheless the fact that you have three solid tricks in the black suits makes it clear that your hand will not be a disappointment defensively.

SAVOY BOXERS PLAN DEFENSE OF GLOVES TITLE

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The young men of the Savoy Athletic club spent a busy afternoon yesterday in their gymnasium at 208 E. 50th st., preparing to defend their Chicago Golden Gloves team title in the tournaments which open on the south side in St. Sabina gymnasium two weeks from tonight. Open and novice division boxers will fight there for 16 titles and as many more will qualify later that week in the north side tournament at Loyola university gymnasium.

Lofton Mitchell.

Open division champions meet Feb. 12 for city honors in the Marigold Gardens and on the same night the sectional novice champions also will decide city titles. Points are scored in both open and novice bouts Feb. 12. Each champion scores three points and the loser one point. On this basis, the Savoy boxers won the tournament trophy last year in the same arena from the Catholic Youth organization. Lofton Mitchell, a welterweight, is expected to be one of Savoy's top boxers.

First Examination Thursday.

The first preliminary medical examination to prepare the lists for the sectional tournaments will be held Thursday evening at the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 E. Congress st., from 6:30 to 8 p. m. The C. Y. O. boxers have been instructed to report at this time by Lou Radzienda, director of C. Y. O. boxing.

Members of the Savoy team, the Madison Athletic club, other organizations and individual entrants will be assigned to examinations at the C. Y. O. gymnasium Jan. 24 and 26.

An exception will be made for boxers in military service who are unable to report for one of these preliminary medical examinations. If the Golden Gloves committee is informed and the boxer picks a sectional tournament he will receive instructions and tickets of admission by mail and then will be examined on the night he reports for his bout. All contestants also are examined before entering the ring.

While no deadline has been set for closing entries in the 18th Golden Gloves sectional tournaments, obviously none can be accepted unless there is sufficient time to forward instructions and assignment to the last physical examination Jan. 26.

Here's How You Enter.

Each contestant receives a consent card which must be signed by parent or guardian and submitted to the clerks on the night of the physical examination. When permission is granted to miss the first examination, this card must be brought to the tournament center. Parental consent is imperative.

Boys under 16 years of age—the date of the bout is the determining factor—can not compete in Golden Gloves under the rules of the Central association of the Amateur Athletic union. All contestants must register with the Central A. A. U. at the time of physical examinations. Boxers in the open division complete the regular program of enrollment which permits competition in sanctioned matches for one year. Novice boxers, competing only in Golden Gloves, receive a special registration card. The fee for this registration is paid by The Chicago Tribune Charities.

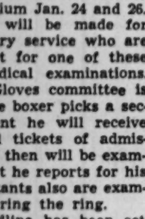
Atoka, Okla., Jan. 14 (AP).—Ted Blankenship, 43, who spent seven full seasons with the Chicago White Sox as a pitcher, died here today after a short illness.



Ted Blankenship.

Blankenship, who got his start in Oklahoma sandlot baseball and went to Chicago in 1922, was one of the Sox's most dependable hurlers. From 1922 thru 1928 he won 75 and lost 75. The big right hander's best season was in 1924 when he won 17 and lost 8 games.

[While Arch Ward, Tribune sports editor and regular conductor of the Wake, is on vacation, this column will be prepared by members of the sports staff.]

FULL BACK BOB WESTFALL of the Detroit Lions, former Michigan star, plays his football with Detroit, lives in Ann Arbor, is partner in a scrap iron business in Adrian, Mich., and also is employed at the Willow Run bomber plant in Ypsilanti—making the question of a mailing address a bit of a problem. . . . The winner of the National Football league's most valuable player award will be announced soon, with three candidates believed to be far ahead in votes cast by pro football writers. . . . The trio comprises Frank Sinkwich of Detroit, Don Hutson of the Green Bay Packers, and Bill Paschal of the New York Giants. . . . O. E. [Babe] Hollingbery, formerly at Washington State, is being mentioned as possible coach of the Brooklyn football Tigers next season. . . . Bill Gustafson, straight A student and all-state half back for West High school of Aurora, who would be welcome at any Western conference school, will report for induction into the navy today. . . . Horse race bookies in Detroit are reported to have found a unique solution to the what-to-bet-on question. . . . They group daily quotations from the New York stock market for individual races. . . . Thus, class A stocks [selling at approximately $100] are in one race. . . . The bookies offered odds one day of 5 to 4 against A. T. & T.; 2 to 1 against Dow Chem.; even money on U. S. Steel; 5 to 3 on du Pont, 5 to 1 on Int. Bus. Mach., and so on. . . . The winner of the race is the stock which makes the greatest gain over the preceding day. . . . The books run seven "races" a day, including the daily double. . . . They are looking for a handicapper who can tell them when to raise or lower the odds on a given stock.

One of the dark horses in the field or possible candidates for the baseball commissionership is Federal Judge Frank Picard of Detroit. . . . A group in New Orleans, headed by Joe Gumbel, has set out to raise $40,000 to perpetuate the winter Open Golf tournament instead of having one man underwrite the event from year to year. . . . Pitcher Ed Heusser of the Reds, who led the National league in efficiency with an earned run average of 2.38 in 1944, started his baseball career 16 years ago under the name of Rodgers. . . . He has pitched in both major leagues, all three double A minor circuits, both A-1 outfits, and a variety of lesser leagues. . . . Charley Gassaway, Cub southpaw, who appeared in a couple of games in 1944 after his purchase from Milwaukee, was born in Gassaway, Tenn. . . . During the off months he is a member of the Tennessee state police force. . . . Lt. [j. g.] Charles [Chuck] Bennis, co-captain of the 1934 Illinois football squad, is at the San Diego [Cal.] naval air station.

Imitation of Life.

We're most of us doing the best we know how
To pretend that things are the same,
We're most of us trying the best that we can
But sometimes our smiles are a little bit strained,
And rather too often, I fear,
Very close crowding the laughter

We throng to the movies, but not because
We're heedless or thoughtlessly gay,
It's more to ward off that loneliness
For the loved ones so far away;
I think that the reason the brighter spots
Are crowded as never before
Is largely because the specter of fear

Yes, most of us do the best that we can
With the tasks to be done every day,
Keeping so busy there's no time to see
That cloud with an edging of gray;
But we're only going thru the motions,
And will till the end of this strife,
For until they come home it's not living—

My Dream Wave.

To a Wave and a sailor lad;
By the gleam in their eyes
And the dream in their sighs
I saw I had made them glad.

"Love has its day and love its way,"
Said an elderly man at my side;
"From the ways we see
In the days to be
There may be a groom and bride."

I smiled at the man. In love, as I am,
My dreaming had reached the sky!
I saw but you
In that suit of blue
And that sailor-laddie was I.

Just as expected, the Catholic Youth organization yesterday won its own 10th annual ice skating Derby in Humboldt park, but the individual star was Frank Jelich, Wisconsin state champion from West Allis, Wis. He won the 220 and 880 yard races against a strong field, then scored a third in the two mile event for 70 points.

From start to finish the athletes wearing the C. Y. O. colors were in the thick of the point making. Their total was 540, almost twice the score of the Northwest Skating club, runner-up, which had 280 points. Glen Ellyn A. A., landed third with 220.

Elaine Gordon Scores 70.

Elaine Bogda Gordon sparked Northwest's performance with 70 points gained on firsts in the 880 yard and mile, and a third in the 220 yard sprint.

Perhaps the most thrilling race developed when Marion Laise, C. Y. O. sprint star, defeated Peggy Barber of the George F. Barrett club in a blanket finish in the 220 yard event.

Buddy Solem of the C. Y. O. landed first in the men's two mile race, with his teammate, Lowell Miller, second. Jelich was third.

BOSTON TAKES LEAD, THEN CHICAGO FANS CHEER

Bill Cowley, Boston center, giving the Bruins a 1 to 0 lead in the first 28 seconds of play in a National Hockey league game with the Blackhawks in Chicago Stadium last night. The puck (arrow) is sailing into the unprotected nets as Hawk Goalie Mike Karakas makes a futile attempt at a save. Directly behind Cowley is Bill Jennings (No. 17), who earned an assist. Mush March, veteran Hawk, is also in on the play.

BYRON NELSON TAKES PHOENIX OPEN WITH 274

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 14 (AP).—Byron Nelson stood off last round sub par rallies by Denny Shute, Akron, O., veteran, and Sam Byrd, Detroit, to win the $6,666 war bond Phoenix Open golf meet by two strokes today.

Nelson's 72 hole score was 274, 10 strokes under par for the flat, tree bordered Phoenix Country club course.

Shute, Professional Golfers' association champion in 1936 and 1937, shot two brilliant 68s today to place second with a 276.

Nelson Collects $1,333.

Byrd bid strongly for the leadership with a last-round 68, 3 under par. His total was 277.

The victory was worth $1,333 in war bonds to Nelson. Shute collected $933, and Byrd $746.66, also in war bonds.

Bob Hamilton of Chicago, P. G. A. champion, landed in fourth place after a 65 on the last round for a total of 278, one stroke back of Byrd. Hamilton, tied for the lead on the first day, faltered on the greens this morning, taking a 75. His afternoon round was the best of the day.

Harold [Jug] McSpaden, Sanford, Me., last year's winner here, collapsed after being in the runner-up spot at the start today, two strokes behind Nelson. McSpaden ballooned to a 76 in the morning and had a 72 in the afternoon. He finished in fifth place with a 283.

Nalson Shakes Off Byrd.

Nelson skidded to a one over par 72 in the third round today, but held a three stroke margin at the start of the last 18. His last round 69 was played under severe pressure from Byrd, who was in Nelson's threesome.

Going into the last nine, Nelson held only a one stroke margin over Byrd. The Toledo star pulled away to a two stroke lead on the 14th hole, where he ran down a 30 foot putt.

Sam Snead of Virginia wound up in 12th place, shooting a 73 on the afternoon round. His drives straightened out today, but he had difficulty with his putts. Snead said he has reconsidered yesterday's announcement that he would quit the winter circuit.

Service Men's Free Bowling Is Result of All-Star Meet

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The scoreboard still carries the final standings of the fourth annual All-Star bowling tournament sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America last December, with such names as Buddy Bomar, Pvt. Joe Wilman, Joe Sinke, Ned Day, and Therman Gibson, but you'd never recognize the place these days. The place, of course, is the Auditorium Service Men's Center bowling plant, where the aforementioned stars now are replaced daily by service men and women bowlers.

It is fitting that these young folks in uniform should be toppling the pins on the Auditorium's 12 handsomely groomed lanes, for they were the intended beneficiaries of the big plan when it was put into effect in the fall of 1942. Barring three tournaments—the Victory team event in March, the national two-man battle in May, and the All-Star individual classic in December—all of the year's bowling is restricted entirely to bowlers in uniform.

Free to Those in Service.

All bowling is free to soldiers, sailors, coast guardsmen, marines, and service women. Eighty bowling balls of various weights are available, as are 100 pairs of regulation bowling shoes of different sizes, all tucked into separate compartments in a special case back of the alleys.

The man in charge of this unique example of Chicago's proved hospitality to service men and women is Bill Armstrong, a native Chicagoan who bowled independently for 19 years before taking over as manager of the Service Men's Center alleys in September, 1943. Bill also serves as instructor for those young folks who request lessons. He's on deck when the lanes open at noon each week day, and he's still on hand when the last detail goes to the line at 10:45 p. m., each day's action ending at 11:30 p. m.

Reward for 200 Score.

Armstrong derives his biggest satisfaction from the enthusiasm of the uniformed men and women who take advantage of the Auditorium setup. The majority of them are only average bowlers, but when one does click with a 200 game or better, Bill awards him or her a miniature bowling pin. He also maintains a regular correspondence with dozens of soldiers and sailors who have come to him for lessons while stationed in or passing thru Chicago. One Cincinnati boy who had been having difficulty winning from home town rivals took tips from Armstrong, then went back to Ohio and trimmed all of them.

Another pupil was Sailor Bob Scuttle of La Grange, who wound up his course of lessons with a 252 and then reported an attested 266 after he had been shipped out. Armstrong's prize student, of course, was balding Harold Peters, the seaman who for several weeks led the city in the Chicago eliminations for the 1944 All-Star tournament. Harold went over to the trials at Cascade, fired a practice game of 249, then posted an official series of 715. Harold didn't make the semi-finals of the big show, but volunteered as a tournament scorer whenever he was able to be on deck.

More Than 800 Games a Day.

Each week day finds a regular record of from 800 to 850 games. Each bowler is limited to two games, with a maximum of three bowlers on each alley. On Sunday afternoons the bowling program is withdrawn in favor of special entertainments which pack the Auditorium. The ball returns are removed, and tarpaulins and beaver board are placed over the approaches and half of the bowling surface to provide a stage for the performers.

The cast of "Oklahoma!" put on two shows during its stay here, including Christmas day. A regular Sunday feature is the broadcast of The Sky Riders over W-G-N from the service center.

A Petersen Idea.

The not inconsiderable cost of maintaining such a huge tenpin plant is covered by the proceeds of the three big league competitions held on the center's lanes each year, notably the All-Star event.

The original idea of installing free bowling for service men came from Louis P. Petersen, sometimes referred to as Mr. Bowling. Recalling that Chicago bowling men had contributed eight alleys to Great Lakes during World War I., Pete suggested to Mayor Kelly that the Auditorium would be an ideal site for an even larger project now. A major factor at the outset was the generous coöperation of Chicago bowling proprietors, who started out by assessing each member $10 per alley bed.

KENTUCKY DERBY OFFICIALS PLAN A 'BETLESS' RACE

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 14 [Special].—An exclusive Kentucky Derby, without spectators or betting and well within war time regulations, remains a possibility despite the recent ban on horse racing. Officials of America's foremost horse race, first run in 1875, are devising plans for continuing the spectacle regardless of the crowds, stakes, or caliber of the horses.

Hopeful of gaining approval of James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, officials would enter horses now quartered at Churchill Downs, site of the Derby, as well as other horses which are allowed to be shipped to their home stables there.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The new Blackhawks last night refused to have their feelings hurt by a momentary wolfish trend on the part of some of the 15,101 assembled fans and proceeded to beat the Boston Bruins, 4 to 1, while early hecklers howled in glee.

Two of the Chicago goals were made by Butch McDonald and Don Grosso, making their Chicago debut as Hawks; another was accomplished by Lude Check, who joined the team long after the season began. The other marker was made by the team's leading scorer, Clint Smith.

Bill Cowley, the Boston veteran star, scored the visitors' goal 28 seconds after the opening of the match and the Hawks dominated the play all the rest of the way.

Fourth Chicago Victory.

It was the fourth Chicago victory in the first half of the season, which was concluded with last night's engagement. It was the 13th game in the Stadium this season, and the first victory since the Hawks beat Detroit here, 2 to 1, on Dec. 17. Also, it was the first success of Chicago over Boston in five tries this season. Quite a statistical encounter, all in all, tho the gorgeous success left the lads with their inheritance, last place, seven points behind the Bruins and the Rangers who are tied for fourth and fifth places.

Even the lone Boston goal was due to the Hawks' new found zeal. They started the game with a power rush into the Boston defense zone but the puck squirted out of control. It was picked up by Bill Jennings, who passed to Cowley in front of the cage without leaving Goalie Mike Karakas much chance for a save.

The Hawks scored the winning goal in 5:33 of the second period. McDonald captured the puck on the right boards and passed to Joe Cooper near the blue line. Joe banged a long, diagonal shot across the Bruin defense zone to Check who was waiting at Bibeault's left, 6 feet out. Lude smacked it home perfectly while the Boston goalie was trying to figure out what was going on.

McDonald scored in solo in 2:34, and Grosso, assisted by Mosienko, added to the debut success with the fourth Chicago tally, in 14:45 of the second period.

While Cully Simon, third member of the former Red Wings making their Hawk debuts in Chicago, did not get in on the scoring, he played a sterling game at defense.

N. U., OHIO CHASE IOWA'S QUINTET IN BIG NINE RACE

Hawkeyes Get Next Test from Wolverines.

Altho the University of Iowa's Hawkeyes hold undisputed leadership in the Western conference basketball race, a feeling persists in the Big Nine that the race is still a wide open affair and that the eventual title holder will be decided in the closing phases of the season.

The Hawkeyes served notice Saturday night in whipping Purdue, 61 to 34, that it will take considerably more than wishful thinking to do anything about eliminating Iowa from consideration, but with the race still in its infancy and with all entrants in the Big Nine stepping up the tempo of their respective scoring machines, a mad championship scramble, reminiscent of prewar days, appears likely.

Iowa Visits Michigan.

Nothing can be done about knocking Iowa off its perch atop the Big Nine heap until Friday night when the Hawkeyes invade Ann Arbor to battle the Wolverines, who boast a record of two victories against as many defeats. However, unless the Michigan quintet can muster some new found strength, the Hawkeyes are expected to maintain their leadership without too much trouble.

Northwestern and Ohio State are right on the heels of Iowa with two victories and one defeat each and ready to climb into the lead in the event the Hawkeyes falter in quest of a Western conference championship. The Buckeyes, defending champions, proved that they are not to be counted out of the race, despite their earlier defeat by Purdue, by coming from behind to whip Northwestern, 53 to 46, Saturday night.

Illini Five Clicks.

Illinois not only increased its standing in the Big Nine race but also added considerably to its prestige by reversing an earlier defeat at the hands of Michigan and dealing the Wolverines a 55 to 37 defeat Saturday.

Minnesota's basketball hopes suffered a relapse last week after the Gophers took a stride upward in whipping Purdue. Since that time, however, Minnesota lost to Northwestern, 52 to 33, Friday night and then took a 46 to 37 reversal in a game with Wisconsin in Madison Saturday.

The Big Nine race will be resumed no later than Wednesday night when Indiana and Purdue meet in the first of their two regularly scheduled games.

N. U. Faces Purdue.

The other game, besides the Iowa-Michigan affair, Friday night will pit Northwestern against Illinois in Champaign, which is expected to present the highest scoring contest of the Big Nine campaign.

Three games are scheduled for Saturday night: Indiana at Minnesota; Michigan at Ohio State and Northwestern at Purdue.

Chicago's interest in basketball this week will be focused on the resumption of the Stadium double headers Saturday night with Great Lakes opposing Notre Dame and DePaul meeting Hamline college.

Before Notre Dame reports for its engagement with Great Lakes Saturday night the Irish will meet old rival Marquette in South Bend Tuesday night. Great Lakes will play Bowling Green at the naval center tonight. Then the Bluejackets will travel to Lawrence college Wednesday evening.

The Iowa Seahawks are scheduled for two games this week, meeting Bunker Hill at Iowa City Friday night, then playing at Drake university Saturday night. Another university Saturday night.

MANN OF AUSTIN IS REINSTATED; TO PLAY TODAY

Bill Mann, forward and captain of the Austin High school basketball team who was suspended last Wednesday, has rejoined the team and will play in today's game against Tuley, Coach Harry Kellar of Austin announced yesterday.

Regarding the suspension, Kellar said: "Mann's one' of my best friends, but I had to discipline him He's a good basketball player and has the right attitude now."

Mann supposedly was suspended because of breaking training rules. He was rated as one of the best players in the city last season, and was the leading Austin scorer when suspended.

FELLER FIRES A HIGH, HARD ONE FOR BASEBALL

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 14 (AP).—Chief Specialist Bob Feller, who stood American league sluggers on their ears when he pitched for the Cleveland Indians, made port here today after an 18 months' tour of duty and offered an emphatic opinion that service men do not want to see big league baseball discontinued.

Bob Feller.

Looking as fit as when he enlisted in the navy two days after Pearl Harbor, Feller replied to newsmen's questions about the future of baseball as follows:

"Baseball is one of the American ideals we in the service are fighting for. From my observations on both sea sides of our nation I'd say the vast majority of our service men want baseball continued as long as possible.

"I can't for the life of me see how a handful of 4-Fs and overage men playing baseball to entertain millions—at home and overseas—can make much difference in our war effort."

KOSCIUSZKO'S 47 TOPS ENTRIES IN SILVER SKATES

Kosciuszko park, 2732 N. Avers, led the list of Silver Skates entries from Chicago parks and playgrounds received on Saturday for the 28th annual races sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which will be held next Saturday and Sunday in Garfield park. Herbert Buell, Kosciuszko park supervisor, submitted the names of 47 boys who will compete in the boys' midget and juvenile Derbies.

Hundreds of individual and team entries were received yesterday, the last day for entering Silver Skates and these probably can not be tabulated before tomorrow. The lists of competitors in the eight Derbies will go to the printers Wednesday evening and it is apparent that the total will exceed the number entered in the 1944 Silver Skates events.

Qualifying Races Saturday.

Skaters in the four Derbies for those under 16 will report Saturday for qualifying races at Garfield park. Racing numbers will be issued from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and the first event will start at 2 o'clock. Skaters in the older classes —boys' intermediate, men's senior, and girls' intermediate and senior—will report Sunday between 10 a. m. and noon. The first qualifying test will start at 1 o'clock.

Ralph Bermele of Sherwood municipal playground has entered 31 boys in four of the five Derbies. Sherwood will not be represented in the senior division. With an entry of 18 in the girls' junior Derby and two in the girls' intermediate Derby, submitted by Ida Meyers, the total for Sherwood places that park high in the list in competition for the silver trophy annually awarded the team which has the largest number of skaters report for qualifying tests. Each skater will receive a souvenir button.

Other Entries Filed.

Other team entries compiled yesterday from Saturday's mail include Swift playground, Lou Krandel and Ruth Stewart, instructors; Stehman playground, John Bauer and Jeanne Mooney, instructors; Waters Skating club, Louis Granzin, instructor; Trumbull playground, Fred Parucka, director; Orr playground, Steve Driggett, instructor; Shoop playground, Leonel Chatman, instructor; Touhy playground, B. MARTIN NAMES 6 TO G. O. P. TAX STUDY GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—Rep. Martin [R., Mass.] minority leader of the house, today announced the membership of the Republican post-war tax study committee which will study ways of revising the post-war tax system so it will not be oppressive to business enterprises and individuals.

The committee, which studied tax problems during the last congress and made a lengthy report, again will be under the chairmanship of Rep. Reed [N. Y.]. Other members include Representatives Knutson [Minn.], Woodruff, [Mich.], Mason [Ill.], Cunningham [Ia.], and Harness [Ind.].

"We all realize that our entire taxing system must be revised and simplified," Martin said in a statement. "Even with the work that already has been done by the congress, our taxing system still represents a patchwork which has been built up over the years. The strains and stresses of post-war conditions will demand a taxing system which businessmen and individual citizens can at least understand."

Martin said that the present tax system would be an obstacle to war veterans who want to go into business for themselves after the war. He said the committee will be divided into five subcommittees which will study specific phases of taxation.

GOVERNMENTAL WORKERS IN CIO VOW NO STRIKES

A no-strike pledge and a resolution indorsing an annual minimum base wage of $2,500 for its members were voted yesterday at a conference of State, County, and Municipal Workers of America [CIO] in the union's regional offices at 64 W. The conference also adopted resolutions calling on the United Automobile Workers union [CIO] to renew its no-strike pledge and commending Secretary of State Stettinius "for his policies in defense of the rights of Greece and other liberated countries to form their own governments."

Abram Flaxer, international president, told the meeting that local government officials have generally failed to keep pace even with the minimum wage provisions made in private industry to enable workers to meet rising living costs.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Irvin W. Greer, Baldwin City, Kas.]

THE QUESTION.

In what ways do you think a man should help about the home?

WHERE ASKED.

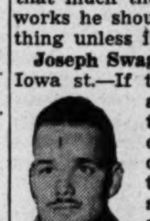
THE ANSWERS.

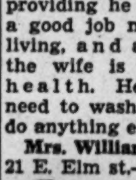
Sam Bronstein, furniture manufacturer, Lake Shore Drive hotel—A man should do all the heavy work around the house, carry out the garbage, bring up things from the basement, clean the basement, and help with dishes once in a while. If husband and wife work they should divide the housework.

Mrs. Arthur J. Gear, housewife, 7032 Vernon av.—I've the most wonderful husband in the world. He gets everything ready for me, and sometimes brings me my breakfast in bed. He's retired and has nothing else to do. Husbands shouldn't do that much tho. If he works he shouldn't have to do anything unless it's an emergency.



Joseph Swaggerty, expediter, 4458 Iowa st.—If the wife keeps house and doesn't work I think the man should do about 20 per cent of the work around the home. Help straighten the house—at least hang up his own clothes. Occasionally he should help with the weekly cleaning. Once in a while he could dry the dishes.

Mrs. R. H. Morrow, housewife, 622 Mayfair rd., Arlington Heights—I feel that the man shouldn't be required to do any more than he feels like doing, providing he is doing a good job making a living, and assuming the wife is in good health. He doesn't need to wash dishes, help cook, or do anything else.



Mrs. William Dunning, housewife, 21 E. Elm st.—If there are children in the family old enough to do dishes I don't think a man should be required to do them. My husband helps with the shopping, repairs things around the house, and dries the dishes every night. I wouldn't expect any more of him.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

BRITISH REGARD F. D. R. MESSAGE AS LOAN OFFER

Would Aid Exports to Russia.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 14. — President Roosevelt's budget message which called for the setting up of an international monetary fund and an international bank, was interpreted in London as implying that the United States was eager to aid its war torn allies of Europe, particularly Britain, with dollar loans. It was suggested that the post-war international credits policy would clear the way for the United States to help finance British exports to Russia.

Oscar Hobson, editor of the London News-Chronicle, said that Britain "could well supply Russia with large amounts of industrial machinery and equipment she will need, but to supply such goods on extended credit terms, which Russia will require, would be difficult. Under the constitution of the bank we might supply machinery and equipment while credit was granted, in part, by other countries, including the United States."

Like New Deal Policy.

The Birmingham Post saw in the budget message "the same sort of policy which lay behind the New Deal." It asserted "the United States cannot rightly, nor even reasonably hold aloof from the task of social and economic reconstruction for the very good reason that only the United States has the resources to make social and economic reconstruction possible."

The Yorkshire Post said Roosevelt would have difficulties "persuading American public opinion that international coöperation is a matter of reciprocal concessions."

The Western Mail assailed proposals for far reaching schemes in trade, economic, finance, and domestic reform "without the slightest regard to America's policy" and said Britain "will much more depend upon America's coöperation this time owing to deeper national impoverishment and taxation burdens."

Demands Mutual Aid.

The Financial Times regretted that President Roosevelt "had nothing to say on any modification of tariff policies" and the Weekly Economist came out with a demand for special "mutual aid" arrangements between non-American countries to expand trade.

"The effect of special mutual aid agreements between non-American countries cannot possibly redound to the disadvantage of American exports," the Economist contended. "It can only expand the sum total of world trade with incalculable benefits to all. Such arrangements, therefore, are a positive and constructive contribution to the problem of rebuilding not only individual countries but world economy."

1944 NEWSPRINT OUTPUT IS 1 PCT. LESS THAN 1943

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Combined 1944 newsprint production in Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States at 3,984,383 tons was 1 per cent under that of 1943, the newsprint service bureau reported today.

Canadian output was 2,991,782 tons, compared with 2,982,797 in 1943 and with 3,425,865 in 1941, base year for current newsprint use restrictions.

SOUTH PORTO RICO SUGAR.

After the pending sale of most of its lands in Puerto Rico, the company will continue as a large producer of cane in the Dominican republic where its holdings had previously been the more extensive. Any Dominican shipments of sugar to the United States are subject to import duty, and those from Puerto Rico are duty free. However, the Dominican costs are low. This fact helps to offset the lower price in world markets in which the Dominican production normally is sold.

In the Dominican republic about 150,000 acres are owned, of which 60,000 are cultivated. Cane grinding capacity there is about 150,000 short tons of sugar a year, about the same as in Puerto Rico. In the latter island, the company's subsidiary partnership has owned approximately 19,000 acres and its direct holdings amount to 350 acres. Under the Puerto Rican law limiting land holdings to 500 acres, the company has agreed to sell the subsidiary's excess acreage to the insular land authority. The compensation remains uncertain pending appraisal. The company is expected to continue its sugar grinding operations.

Its earnings in the fiscal year ended last Sept. 30 were equal to $7.65 a share on the 745,734 common shares compared with $5.63 in the preceding year. The 1942 profit was equal to $4.89. In 1941, the preferred dividend requirement was not fully earned. During the five preceding years the profit averaged $2.25 annually. Dividends in 1944 totaled $5.90 a share, and in 1943, $3.50.

U. S. MERCHANT FLEET TOPS ALL WORLD RECORDS

Since the outbreak of the war, the American fleet has grown to approximately 50 million deadweight tons of ships, the largest armada of transport ships the world has ever seen under the flag of any one maritime power. Manning these ships are 195,000 officers and seamen.

These figures were disclosed yesterday by the 6th regional office of the United States Maritime service which stated that in December, 1941, we had approximately 10,500,000 deadweight tons. They were sailed by 50,000 men.

The maritime service has trained more than 140,000 men since the attack on Pearl Harbor, and appeals for the voluntary enlistment of more men between 17 and 50.

ALL UNIONS FARE SIMILARLY, WLB REPORT ASSERTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14 (AP).—The war labor board said today that all unions, whether independent or affiliated with AFL or CIO, have received "similarly uniform" wage adjustments under WLB rulings.

The board cited statistics on this point in a report on its third year of activity prepared by WLB Executive Director Theodore W. Kheel.

A special tabulation of dispute cases handled during the first nine months of 1944 showed an average wage adjustment for all union groups of 5.3 cents an hour. The average increase for independent unions was the same figure, with the AFL average increase 5.6 cents and the CIO 5.1.

During its three year existence WLB has closed approximately 363,000 cases involving about 24 million workers. Most of the cases, about 350,000, were voluntary agreements in which WLB merely decided whether proposed pay increases could be allowed under stabilization policies.

AM. PHENOLIC'S DEBENTURES AND STOCK OFFERED

Public offering of $1,500,000 of 15-year 5 per cent convertible sinking fund debentures and 345,000 shares of common stock of American Phenolic corporation will be made today by an underwriting group headed by Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. The debentures are priced at 100 per cent and the stock at $10 a share.

Proceeds of the sale of the debentures will be added to the company's working capital. The stock is being sold for the account of Arthur J. Schmitt, president of the company, who heretofore has owned all of the outstanding stock.

HOME LOAN BANK SETS RECORD IN 1944 ADVANCES

The Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago in 1944 broke all previous records in volume of advances to Illinois and Wisconsin savings, building, and loan associations, bringing to $20,209,066 the amount of such loans outstanding on Dec. 31, A. R. Gardner, president, said in a report released today. Such advances totaled $46,804,906, or 85 per cent above advances a year earlier, he said. Seasonal fluctuations in the flow of money in and out of the community savings and loan institutions largely accounted for their large borrowings, he said.

Urge Release of Treasury's Silver Stocks

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Handy & Harman, silver dealers, today urged release of treasury stocks of silver for use in making civilian products.

Reporting that suppliers to domestic manufacturers "were compelled to ration regular users of the metal to quotas far below the 50 per cent limitation established by the war production board," the silver company said in its annual report: "The obvious solution to this severe stringency in domestic silver would seem to be the release of treasury stocks, and silver users are still hopeful that WPB will permit such action.

No Hindrance to War Plans.

"Any thought that the war effort would be impeded by granting additional supplies for the making of civilian products is contradicted by the testimony of the WPB representative when the Green bill [permitting release of silver for certain uses] was first under consideration."

North American silver production dropped sharply in 1944, the report said. "Our estimate is United States, 34½ million ounces; Mexico, 63 million, and Canada 14,600,000," it said. "Compared with 1943, these figures indicate decreases in production of 11 per cent for Mexico, 17 per cent for the United States, and nearly 20 per cent for Canada. We believe that Peru's output remained unchanged at about 15 million ounces."

Federal Silver Holdings Dip.

Government silver holdings also decreased just under 3 billion ounces on Nov. 30, the report said. The reduction of about 254,700,000 ounces in the first 11 months of 1944 compared with a drop of 85,300,000 ounces in all of 1943.

For 1944 the report estimated arts and industries used 125 million ounces, 65 per cent of it for war or other essential uses, compared with a revised 1943 estimate of 120 million ounces.

Domestic coinage took about 64,496,000 ounces in the first 11 months of 1944, the report said, against 98,485,000 in all of 1943. In addition, however, 67,054,000 ounces were coined for foreign governments under lend-lease and added to large amounts sent to India, this took 202,807,000 ounces.

OPA Boosts Green Coffee Ceiling Price 2 Per Cent

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14 (AP).—The OPA today authorized a 2 per cent increase in ceiling prices importers and subsequent sellers may charge for green coffee, effective tomorrow. It will be absorbed by the processor and will not result in higher retail prices for roasted coffee, OPA said. The measure does not increase ceiling prices which importers may pay to growers for green coffee.

Demands Full Inquiry Before Drafting 4-Fs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—A demand that a full investigation be made into the nation's man power situation before any laws are passed to force 4-Fs and other deferred men into war jobs under threat of induction or fines was made tonight by Rep. Short [R., Mo.], a member of the house military affairs committee.

Rep. Short.

Short said that when the military affairs committee resumes hearings tomorrow with representatives of organized labor presenting their objections to the proposed "work or fight" bill he and other Republican members of the committee will object to any administration move to ram the measure thru without adequate inquiry.

Wants to Hear Ship Yard Men.

Short said he wanted to call in the heads of government ship yards and arsenals and of the big private companies that are making the munitions of war and question them about the man power situation.

"The words of such men certainly carry more weight than those of a lot of New Deal appointees who hold their jobs at the sufferance of their leader," he said.

Short said he wanted to learn what has become of the "thousands and thousands" of workers who were thrown out of work last summer and early fall when war production was ordered curtailed.

Other Questions to Ask.

"Let's find out where these people are, and how many persons are idle," he said. "We need to know how much labor is being wasted and hoarded. We also should be told about the work the discharged veterans are doing. Thousands of them are going back into industry every month.

"Such testimony as we have had shows that we have not been fully utilizing the workers now available, either in industry or in the military services, and if the New Deal can't manage properly what they have now, how can they do better with more workers?" he asked.

Short insisted that bungling by the various New Deal war agencies, and not a shortage of workers, has caused the man power situation. Congress, he said, has given the administration every power and financial appropriation asked, but the result has been a "hauling and pulling" for power among the agency heads who have demanded one thing one month and something else the next, usually at cross purposes with each other.

BREWERY STRIKE IN ST. PAUL MAY GO TO PRESIDENT

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14 (AP).—All sides in St. Paul's brewery tie-up were marking time today awaiting the next step by the federal government. The war labor board in Washington Saturday repeated its order to striking members of the AFL Brewery Drivers to return to work Monday, on the threat of having the dispute referred to the President.

The strike, which began Dec. 13, was the result of a national labor relations board order that an election in the St. Paul breweries should be plant-wide instead of being confined to drivers only. The independent United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, and Soft Drink Workers won the election.

Call Off Tire Strike.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 14 (AP).—A two day strike over piece rates by 250 employes at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company plant in suburban New Toronto, was called off tonight pending conciliation talks.

EMERSON NET INCOME, SALES SET NEW PEAKS

Reflect Demand for Plane Turrets.

Emerson Electric Manufacturing company yesterday reported sales and profits reached record highs in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. Sharp increases in each category reflected added demand for airplane gun turrets and other war products produced by Emerson, said W. Stuart Symington, president.

Sales rose to $113,819,611 from $83,207,190 in the 1943 fiscal year. Net income, after income tax provisions of $7,560,200, was $2,892,715, or $6.39 a share, compared with year ago profit of $898,658, or $2.01 a share, when the tax bill was $2,427,473.

Inventories Rise Sharply.

Inventories increased to $16,685,857 on Sept. 30 from $1,688,948 a year earlier. No renegotiation refund was required in the two preceding fiscal years, Symington said, and none is expected to be made for the 1944 fiscal period.

Calling attention to a trend toward special motor applications by the army and navy, Symington said one new bomber now in heavy production utilizes more than 140 motors. Many of these new applications will be wanted on regular commercial and private planes, he said, predicting capacity production in Emerson's electrical division "for some years to come."

Will Continue Turret Output.

In the turret division Emerson will continue to build "local" gun turrets [turrets containing the operator], and also will begin production of remote control turrets as well as the most advanced types of gun sights, he said.

Emerson after the war will introduce at least two additional major lines, to be manufactured in the turret division and sold in both national and international markets, he said.

Basil Harris, president of the United States Lines company, estimated its consolidated net earnings for 1944 were $1,235,000, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 85 cents a common share, compared with $1,567,000 or $1.11 a common share in 1943.

ILLINOIS BOOSTS '44 BOND BUYING TO 4½ BILLIONS

Illinois residents purchased $4,529,246,000 of war bonds in 1944, averaging more than $14,700,000 for each of the 308 business days, Renslow P. Scherer, chairman of the Illinois war finance committee, reported yesterday.

Corporations purchased $3,073,339,000 and individuals $1,455,907,000, including $614,629,000 in "E" bonds. Sales to individuals represented an average purchase of $620 for each of the state's estimated 2 million families.

The bulk of the purchases, amounting to $4,212,246,000, was made in the 4th, 5th, and 6th war loan drives. A total of $317,000,000 in bonds was bought between drives.

In the 4th loan drive total purchases amounted to $1,209,000,000, corporations buying 887 million dollars, and individuals 322 million dollars.

Fifth drive purchases totaled $1,471,000,000, corporations taking $1,054,000,000 worth, and individuals 417 million dollars.

Total sales in the 6th drive were $1,532,000,000, corporations buying $1,135,000,000 and individuals 400 million dollars.

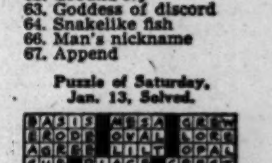
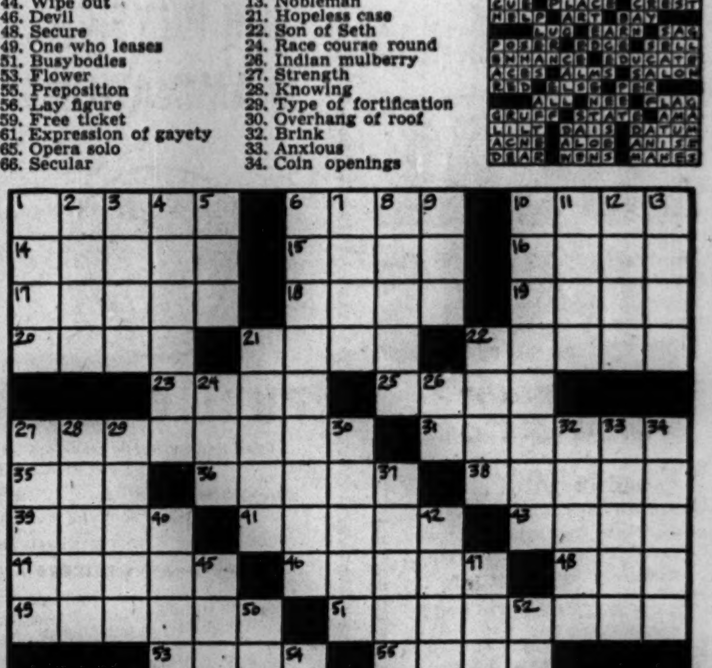
Puzzle of Saturday, Jan. 13, Solved.





BEE REVEALED AS HONEY OF WAR WORKER

Without the insect, there would be less alfalfa for feeding dairy and beef cattle, fewer fruits and vegetables for army mess and the home front table, and too little beeswax, an indispensable, weatherproof coating for metal war materials, James I. C. Hambleton, chief of the division of bee culture for the United States department of agriculture, said yesterday.

Leaders in Fields Meet.

He and 150 other leaders in the fields of apiary, agriculture, research, honey sales, and beekeepers' supplies are meeting in the Morrison hotel thru tomorrow in the annual sessions of the Allied Beekeeping organizations.

Early in the war, Hambleton said, bees received a high priority rating from the war production board, not because of their honey, which is used chiefly for food, but because the insects pollenate legumes for cattle feed, and make it possible to maintain a high quota of seeds with which to plant new orchards and vegetable fields.

50 Items on the List.

Approximately 50 fruits and vegetables, Hambleton said, are dependent 80 per cent of the time on the honey bee, as other native pollenating insects have been largely dispersed thru the use of insecticides sprayed on trees to combat pests.

The status of the bee in the war time agricultural picture will carry over into the postwar period, Hambleton said. Research in pollenation has been accelerated, and results of experiments will revolutionize crop procedures, he believes.

Also on the agenda of the convention is a meeting tonight of the National Beekeepers' auxiliary, whose members are chiefly apiarists' wives who propagandize honey by means of recipes.

INLAND STEEL MEDICAL PLAN TO HELP VETS

In a pioneering program to assist returning veterans who, having fought on battlefields thruout the world, may have been exposed to a multitude of diseases, the Inland Steel company has supplied the company's physicians with a complete analysis of tropical, Asiatic, and other diseases.

Dr. E. H. Carleton, medical director of the company, has compiled from all available sources a list describing the symptoms and after effects of 55 different ailments encountered in 207 regions thruout the world, to aid Inland physicians in assisting stricken soldiers to return to health and employment. In some cases, Dr. Carleton said, veterans are not ill when they return but may be stricken later.

"Most of the diseases rarely would be encountered by the physician in the course of ordinary practice," Dr. Carleton said, "which makes the Inland analysis of particular value to a doctor examining and caring for veterans in industry who have been exposed to alien ailments."

HEARING SET FOR EXCHANGE AID IN FRAUD

Mrs. Marjorie Smith, 21, of 2042 Cleveland av., part time cashier of a currency exchange at North av. and Sedgwick st., will be arraigned in Felony court this morning on a charge of embezzling $3,100 from her employer. Her husband, Lawrence, a truck driver, to whom she admitted giving $800, will be arraigned as an accessory.

Police said Mrs. Smith admitted she took the money, spent $1,200 on furniture. The $1,100 balance was found in her home.

Her employer, Jack Rose, 4945 N. St. Louis av., told police he trapped her Saturday by leaving a marked pile of $100 bills in the exchange. When he returned from lunch, he said, one of the bills was missing.

Mulcahy Lauds War Activities of Irish

Sheriff Mulcahy yesterday lauded the part persons of Irish descent are performing in this nation's fighting forces and in its war production before the Ancient Order of Hibernians in the Morrison hotel. Officers of 17 Cook county divisions of the order were installed at the meeting, which was attended by members and ladies' auxiliary guests. The order was instituted in Chicago in 1844 by Dr. William Quarter, first Catholic bishop of Chicago.

Rotary Club to Hear Talk by Publisher

Franklin Johnston, publisher of the American Exporter and its Spanish edition, El Exportador Americano, will address the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club of Chicago tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman on "Foreign Trade and Domestic Prosperity."

Inquest Set in Death of Dentist in Office

An inquest will be held at 11 a. m. today at 4138 North av. into the death of Dr. Joy H. Everett, a dentist, of 4010 Madison st., who was found dead early yesterday in his office, apparently asphyxiated by gas from an anesthetic machine.

TAX EXPERT SEES CURB ON YOUTH'S JOB

The income tax provision that restricts a dependent to earnings of less than $500 a year may discourage school boys and girls from working in spare time to relieve the man power shortage, Alexander Eulenberg, tax expert at Northwestern university, said yesterday.

Eulenberg pointed out that a boy might earn $490 on a summer job and then be idle the rest of the year because if he went over the $500 limit his father's taxes would increase sharply. If the father's income was $3,000, his taxes would rise $110; if it was $7,500 the tax would rise $150. Tax savings, said Eulenberg, might lead the father to forbid his son to help in war work.

Eulenberg, who will teach income tax courses at Northwestern's downtown campus beginning Feb. 7, said the new income tax form is refreshingly simple, but added that the public has already begun to call for confusing amendments.
